

Two overrides highlight warrant

By Don Staruk

A $1.5 million override of Proposition 2 1/2 for filling out the school budget and a $300,000 override for filling in potholes highlight the 50-article warrant for the April 1 Town Meeting.

Andres Salazar, School Committee chairman, submitted the $1.5 million school override request to selectmen Monday night, the last night to insert

FinCom: Cut town employee raises

FinCom says town can't afford raises

By Don Staruk

The Finance Committee Monday night recommended to the Board of Selectmen that the town renegotiate town employee contracts to remove, or reduce, across-the-board raises.

"Why can't the town appeal to its workers to forgo increases to save jobs?" said Joanne Marden, FinCom chairwoman. "We are not going to develop long-term solutions to Andover's budget problems without controlling labor costs."

The FinCom recommended that town departmental budgets be funded as recommended by the town manager for a balanced budget. Those budgets require cuts to be made that will mean layoffs.

"The primary reason for the increased cost of doing business we are obligated by contract to pay town and school employees," Ms. Marden said. "The direct relationship between the dollars needed to fund wage and salary

Phase II budget Here's what happens to schools with no override

By Lisa Boudreau

If voters don't override Proposition 2 1/2 at the April 1 Town Meeting, $2.5 million will be cut from the schools' budget.

Slated to be cut are 10 positions at Andover High School, the high school industrial arts and home economic programs, as many as five positions at each middle school, a large portion of art and music at all the elementary schools, and also personnel cuts in the learning-disabilities tutor programs systemwide. Also to be hit is the Shawsheen School, which would either be

Looking at before- and after-school day care

By Lisa Boudreau

"Keep Shawsheen School and its kindergarten and readiness programs just as they are." That's the message 15 parents gave Mark McQuillan, superintendent of schools, and School Committee members Michael Frishman and Andres Salazar last Thursday night.

But, if an override of Proposition 2 1/2 fails this spring, Shawsheen School will

Sunday's parade/rally to show support for U.S. troops

A rally and parade to support troops serving in the Persian Gulf will be held Sunday, March 3, in Andover. Organizers say the rally is intended to be non-political but strongly supportive of people serving in the war. If the war is over, the event will celebrate victory.

The parade will begin to form at 1:30 p.m. at the corner of Bartlet and Park streets, according to Susan Poore, who is organizing the event with Joyce and Mickey Connor. The parade, which will kick off at 2 p.m., will march down Florence to Elm to

Main Street, then on to Chestnut Street and finally to Whittier Court. Those watching are encouraged to join the parade as it passes by. There will be a patriotic sing-along in front of Memorial Auditorium. The Rev. Jack Daniel Jr. of Free Christian Church will offer prayers.

Various bands, veterans' groups, the Red Cross and others are expected. Ms. Poore said the group hopes a Marine color guard will participate. Any group that would like to join can contact Joyce Connor, 474-0802, or Ms. Poore, 470-1320.

Candidates talk issues

The Townsman will ask the five candidates for the two open positions on the Board of Selectmen a weekly question until the March 25 election.

Name three issues the selectmen have voted on, or will have to deal with in the near future, and state your position on them. If you'd prefer, comment on not putting an override on the March ballot, tax classification or overriding Proposition 2 1/2 to balance the budget.

Christine Holmes

"I would agree with the majority of the board that the proper place for an override question is on the floor of town meeting.

"Had I been sitting on the board, I would have gone along with the decision to shift classification to 120 percent because Industrial/Commercial property value had dropped so significantly that they were going to be paying less in taxes and the additional burden was going to be shifted to the residential property owner.

"The question whether to override or not is primarily what's on the minds of the townspeople. I am in favor of an override on either the school side or the town side and I think we must live within the manager's budget."

Susan O'Neill

"Initially I thought they should have put (the override question) on the ballot. But when I saw what the final question would have been (it was too simplistic as a single question for the entire $1.5 million as opposed to a menu), I thought it was more prudent of them to put it into Town Meeting.

"I don't believe that we should shift under normal circumstances." But because of the valuation circumstances, businesses valued way low, she understood why they did it.

"I would not have increased it because I have philosophical differences with the idea of classification.

"Symbolically it is bad for small businesses. It is hypocritical to entice small businesses to move to town then hit them with a tax.

"I'd be for a gradual (lowering of the tax shift) once the economy comes around a little and once values are more even handed.

"The concept of Proposition 2 1/2 is not a bad one right now because people have to make a decision.

"However, people have to educate themselves as to what they are paying for taxes, which is not tremendously (high) compared to other similar communities in and out of state."

"I don't think there's much fat in either the school or town budget. We, as citizens, owe it to those who can't pay their own way, to see that their way is paid. On the other hand, it is necessary for the school board and officials of the schools to define what an override would be used for and how much it would cost citizens per year above their normal tax bill."

Ms. O'Neill applauded the Board Selectmen for taking public safety out of the discussion and taking the emotional argument out of the override question.

"If they ask for an override on maintenance, they're putting it in the right framework."

Jim Barenboim

"I voted against putting (the school override) on the ballot because I felt the townspeople deserved the chance to hear it at Town Meeting and hear the pros and the cons."

He was afraid the special-interest groups, such as the School Committee, would conduct informational hearings that might produce biased answers.

(Mr. Barenboim was absent for the board's tax classification vote.)

"I'm against tax classification. I don't think tax classification should ever have been instituted."

Tax classification is a double tax in a sense because taxes are based on a value and if the value of business property is higher, the owner is already paying higher taxes, he said.

"However, because the assessments shifted around this year, I would have been in favor of keeping it even at 15 percent.

"I believe that the override question, giving that the School Committee asked to put it on the warrant, that residents should be allowed to have a chance to vote on it."

Larry Larsen

Editors note: Mr. Larsen named three issues on his own and was not asked to comment on specific issues. His first comments happen to match one of the subjects commented on by the others.

"I would have placed the Proposition 2 1/2 override on the ballot for all the voters to have an opportunity to deal with it."

Forums and the media could then have been used to inform the voters.

Regarding the Central Business District Subcommittee report:

"I feel the selectmen should be active.

While the selectmen are not the Chamber of Commerce, they do have the power to form and maintain a vigorous instrument to attract and encourage business in downtown Andover."

The third thing is attitude. The Board of Selectmen should spell out for the town what the options are.

"The recent debacle regarding trash. That suggestion was quickly withdrawn after a few phone calls. I think that we should not be so hasty in withdrawing a suggestion which has some merit. I'm not saying (the trash idea) is good or bad. It seems to me as if selectmen withdraw their suggestions as soon as they are made."

The condition of the roads and infrastructure are another example of things that need to be dealt with.

"We have massive capital needs in this town. People have to understand what the hard choices are."

Correction

In the story, "Does Andover need a 2 1/2 override?" which began on page 1 in last week's Townsmen, Annetta Freedman was incorrectly quoted on page 43.

The quote should have said, "The media specialists are not just people who check out books."

In fact, Ms. Freedman, media services program adviser, said the job of the media specialists includes resource-based instruction, scheduling, planning and cooperating with teachers, integrating information skills into the curriculum and teaching students to think critically.

"The media librarian's job is to make students lifelong learners, to prepare them for the continuous information explosion so that they will be able to use resources not yet invented through their knowledge of similarities to those they use today," Ms. Freedman added.

The Townsmen apologizes for the mistake.

This car was hit last Friday afternoon when high winds blew scaffolding on front of the Barcelos building on Main Street onto it and into the roadway. No one was in the car or on the sidewalk at the time of the mishap and Carlos Barcelos, owner of the property, said damages to building and car were minor.

Barcelos weathering storm

By Don Staruk

Gusty winds that knocked down scaffolding at the Barcelos building on Main Street last Friday caused the latest setback for the construction project. But the problems are now in the past, according to Carlos Barcelos, co-owner of the property.

Steel and wood scaffolding along the outside of the building was lifted "like a sail," according to Mr. Barcelos, and toppled onto a parked car and into the street at about 5 p.m. Friday.

"It was pretty gusty winds that caused some trouble around the Merrimack Valley," Mr. Barcelos said Monday. "Luckily nobody got hurt and it didn't do any significant damage. It was very fortunate."

Mr. Barcelos and his brother, Jose, closed their grocery store on the site last spring. They are expanding the first floor of the building and adding office space on the second floor.

Construction slowed over the winter, first for the holidays, then because of a problem with the contractor, according to Mr. Barcelos.

"The contractor got in trouble with the economy," he said.

But Mr. Barcelos wanted to quell rumors that he's heard of problems with the project.

"A bonding company stepped in and they're using the same contractor," Mr. Barcelos said. "It looks like they are back on the job. The electricians and plumbers are there."

"I would say that within six weeks things will look a lot different there. Six to nine weeks it will be mostly done," he said. "I'm hoping within four to five weeks the tenants will be in there doing their work."

Rolling Green sports new look

The "Rolling Green" is back, but with multimillion dollar renovations underway, the Rolling Green Host Hotel & Conference Center will bear little resemblance to the old 25-room Rolling Green Motor Inn that was built on the site three decades ago.

The new name reflects many changes at the former Sheraton Inn Hotel & Conference Center-Andover, including the end of its affiliation with Sheraton.

"Despite seven years as a Sheraton hotel, we've found that our customers still have a high regard for the Rolling Green name," said General Manager Philip J. Bond. "They still remember the motor inn that Harry Axelrod built here many years ago. We want to carry on the Rolling Green tradition of quality service and value."

The 182-room hotel, which was built in phases around the original motor inn, is undergoing a complete renovation, including upgrading of heating, ventilation, air conditioning and lighting and renovation of all guest rooms, public areas, banquet space and meeting facilities. The hotel will also feature a new restaurant and renovated lounge. The upgrade, which will be completed in March, is planned so that there will be no inconvenience or break in service to Rolling Green customers.

"Our independence will provide us with the flexibility - and the capital - to best meet the needs of our market," Mr. Bond said. "We can now reposition ourselves to be more competitive by providing a better price value for our guests." The Rolling Green Host will now provide a special Friday and Saturday weekend rate of $49 a night and weekday rates from $65 a night.

Features of the Rolling Green Host include a nine-hole golf course, indoor and outdoor lighted tennis courts, cross-country skiing trails, a full-service health club, indoor and outdoor swimming pools, six suites, 40,000 square feet of exhibition space, 13,000 square feet of meeting and banquet space, a 100-seat amphitheater and a restaurant and lounge.

The CVS pharmacy, at 54 Main St., is planning to move into the first floor of his building along with Shawmut Bank, according to Mr. Barcelos.

"I got Shawmut in the corner (at Main and Chestnut streets) and I got CVS, and that pretty much takes care of the first floor," he said.

CVS has recently signed a five-year lease with Richmond Properties for its current space and would sublet that if it moved into the larger space across the street, according to another source. But none of these details could be confirmed with CVS.

Mr. Barcelos has some tenants lined up for the new office space on the second floor, but said no firm dates for occupancy have been set.

HISTORY

Seeking nominees for building contest

By Virginia Lopez Begg

Did George Washington sleep at your house? Or even George Bush? If not, then perhaps you live in a typical Andover farmhouse or worker's residence of time gone by. Maybe you run a business in an interesting old building. All of the above and many more are eligible for Andover's Historic Building Marker Program.

Andover, founded in 1646, is one of the nation's oldest and most historic communities. Far from being a dusty footnote, Andover's historic associations are an intangible asset that can translate into no-nonsense 20th century dollars, as towns such as Lexington, Concord and Plymouth have happily discovered.

The Historic Building Marker Program, while not a revenue-enhancing measure, can certainly produce such unintended results.

Sponsored by the Andover Historical Commission, a town agency, with the assistance of the Andover Historical Society, the program offers owners of historic buildings a certificate of authenticity in addition to an attractively designed, weather-proof plaque noting the structure's date completes the plaque's design. Plaques are available to eligible owners through the

by Jack Resnick

Outdoor naps are good for the new-born infant, even in cold weather. The baby has enough fat insulation to keep her from getting chilled if she's dressed properly and it's not damp or windy. In the winter, the middle of the day hours are best, and in summer, before or after those hours and in a shaded spot. Down inside a carriage, he/she will be warmer than you are in cool weather, and many need less covering than you think; better to add a blanket after checking rather than take one off when the baby's hot. If you're staying more than a short time indoors, it's worth the trouble to take off the baby's outside clothing.

There is a large selection of baby furniture available at TINY TOTLAND. Open 9-5:30. Mon. & Th. 9-9. We deliver anywhere. Toys for all ages... "heaven to seven". M/C & Visa honored. Living proof that, in emergencies, one of the most important things we save is time.

On February 17, 1989, 7-year-old Kristen Nuttall never expected to leave home in an ambulance.

That's the nature of medical emergencies—the unexpected, uncertain situations—that makes rapid response so critical.

Her family knew for sure that she needed medical attention fast.

The swift, skilled response of New England Memorial's highly trained emergency staff averted what could have been a real tragedy. The care their daughter would receive that night would make their choice the right one.

Kristen Nuttall and Dr. James Steen

Through it all, the compassion and reassurance of New England Memorial's staff gave the Nuttall family something irreplaceable in the midst of crisis: true confidence.

On May 17, 1989—just 3 months later—Kristen Nuttall was again practicing her pirouettes and enjoying life with her family and friends. She is living proof that with swift quality care, emergencies don't have to mean shattered dreams.

a historic marker? The embrace of history is wider than many people realize. Residential, business, institutional and even scenic areas can all qualify. Historic interest also includes cultural and architectural values, even those that are quite recent. Properties included in the National Register of Historic Places, the Massachusetts Historic Register and Andover's Historic Building Survey are all eligible. But perhaps you are treading on historic floors and do not even know it. A call or visit to the Andover Historical Society at 97 Main St. and the assistance of its professional staff and extensive files can soon answer questions about your property.

Andover's Historic Building Marker Program is a graphic reminder of the stories this town's buildings have to tell. It enhances the interest and value of such structures and serves visitors and townspeople alike. Further information is available through the Andover Historical Society, which is open Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. and Wednesday evenings until 8:30 p.m.

Y offers class to prepare test-takers

An SAT and PSAT verbal preparation course is being offered at the Andover/North Andover branch of the Merrimack Valley YMCA, beginning Sunday, March 10.

The class will meet from 3 to 6:15 p.m. on Sundays and on three Wednesdays from 7 to 9:15 p.m. High school sophomores, juniors and seniors will be exposed to test-taking strategies that may lead to score gains of between 60 and 180 points, said instructor Roberta Wolman.

The goal of the course is for participants to gain proficiency in a variety of techniques for solving the analogy and sentence completion test items. Strategies for answering the reading comprehension questions will be presented. Intensive vocabulary development is also featured.

When to guess and how to score and interpret test results are a few of the questions answered, and students will take actual SATs.

Ms. Wolman has been preparing students for the SAT and PSAT for more than 15 years. She is a reading and learning disabilities specialist in Lexington and a registered educational therapist with the Learning Disabilities Network in Rockland.

The course tuition is $180, and materials cost $36. For registration and information, contact the YMCA.

Comedians perform in show for Catholic Schools United Merrimack Valley Catholic Schools United will sponsor a comedy night Friday, March 1, at 8 p.m. at the Andover Marriott.

The evening will feature comedians Jimmy Smith, Cindy Eaton and Caito & Moran from the Comedy Connection in Boston.

Merrimack Valley Catholic Schools United was founded in March 1987 to enable Catholic schools to continue to provide quality education with strong emphasis on the development of moral and spiritual values and to be responsive to the needs and aspirations of all children, said Mike Whelan, development director of the organization.

"The pastors and principals of Catholic schools in the Merrimack Valley saw that the schools had to come together to be preserved and established Merrimack Valley Catholic Schools United," Mr. Whelan said.

They decided to pool their resources and ask the professional and business community to support what they called a "very vital and valuable community asset." The consortium started with four schools and has grown to 12 with several other schools reviewing goals and objectives in anticipation of becoming a part of the group, Mr. Whelan said.

MVCSU's objective is to maintain, promote and preserve Catholic education in the Merrimack Valley.

The organization does this by increasing awareness of the contributions of Catholic schools to the community and securing support for teachers' salaries, tuition subsidies, curriculum development and building and equipment maintenance, he said.

Light refreshments and a cash bar will be available. Tickets are $10 and may be obtained by calling the organization at 685-4888.

Young scientists compete at BU

Contrary to reports, not all high school students disclaim interest or ability in science and math. Proving it are the more than 300 budding scientists, including students from Andover High School, who will compete in the fifth annual Massachusetts State Science Olympiad at the Boston University Metcalf Science Center Saturday, March 16.

Representing 40 high schools in Greater Boston, the students will compete in 19 individual and team events that include building the lightest bridges able to carry a standard load, competing in a pentathlon consisting of physical competition with questions in five scientific disciplines as well as making musical instruments on site and then playing them.

Sponsored by the U.S. Army Cadet Command, the Science Olympiad is held all across the United States.

"Those who compete are creative, self-motivated and can think independently," said Gerald Abegg, BU professor of science education and Olympiad coordinator.

"Team spirit and cooperation, the marks of good research groups, are the attitudes that produce winners in our team competitions."

Trophies will be presented to the best teams at the end of the day's events. The defending champion again this year is Concord-Carlisle High School.

Dr. Ted Johnson and Jane Sonntag are coaching Andover High's team, whose members haven't yet been named.

AHS science students are currently participating in mock contests, and their performance, as well as votes from their classmates, will determine who gets to go.

'Team spirit and cooperation, the marks of good research groups, are the attitudes that produce winners in our team competitions.'

Gerald Abegg, coordinator of Massachusetts State Science Olympiad

Exterior Rolling Shutters a Good Choice

If you are interested in saving energy and providing security against break-ins, exterior insulating rolling shutters are one of your best choices. They offer protection against high winds and storms and greatly reduce outdoor noise when they are completely closed. They are particularly effective for patio doors and large first-floor windows.

Insulating rolling shutters can reduce the heat loss or heat gain through double pane windows by about 50 percent. This results from both increased insulation and reduced air leakage around your window. In the summer, blocking the direct and indirect sun's rays can lower cooling costs, too.

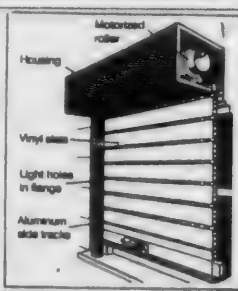

Most residential exterior rolling shutters are made of interlocking horizontal hollow vinyl slats. They slide in aluminum channels on each side of the window and roll up into a housing. The housing is often in the roof soffit out of sight above the window. Insulation filled aluminum slats are also available for very large windows.

You can adjust the rolling shutter in several positions depending on your needs. For the maximum protection, efficiency, light and sound control, you completely lower and close the shutter.

If you want some light and ventilation, you raise the shutter slightly to expose the interlocking flanges. These flanges have many small holes in them. In this slightly-raised position, the holes are exposed. There are enough holes to distinguish forms outside the window.

For more light and ventilation or when seeking passive solar heating in the winter, you roll up the shutter to any position. When it is completely opened, it is totally out of sight from indoors when looking out.

Rolling shutters save energy and provide security.

The most convenient method is an electric motor control. You use an up/down switch mounted on the interior wall near the window.

Remote controls, similar to a garage-door opener, are also available there are even sensors that, in the event of high winds or excessive heat, automatically lower the shutter when you are gone.

Phillips musicians perform Mozart's Requiem

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's Requiem will be performed Fridays, March 1 and 8, the first two concerts of a seven day concert tour to New Orleans, La., and Mobile, Ala.

This tour brings together the Phillips Academy Cantata Choir, the Academy Chamber Orchestra and several guest soloists. This project is under the direction of William Thomas, director of performance at Phillips. Both the Andover and Boston performances are free of charge.

The choir and chamber orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Thomas, has been performing on tour every spring since 1977. Presenting such major choral and chamber music works as Vivaldi's The Seasons, Bach's Brandenburg Concertos, Handel's Israel in Egypt, and Haydn's The Creation, these young musicians have been on tour to Belgium, Canada, France, Italy, Puerto Rico, Scotland and Spain. In this country, they've made appearances in California, Florida, Maine, Maryland, New York, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia.

The tour ensemble is a multiracial, multicultural group of young people drawn from 20 states and six countries.

Local students who will take part in this year's tour are Michael Bor, Shannon Canavin, Elizabeth Canterbury, Arian Giantris, Vanessa Hill, Paul Lisak, Sandra Miller, Marci Mutti, Stephen Peck, Carole Reid, Alyssa Sullivan and Ingrid Tippie.

Mr. Thomas was chairman of the PA music department from 1975 to 1990. His work as an orchestral and choral conductor is well known on the North Shore and in the Boston areas. He recently conducted a performance of Messiah for the city of Cambridge and performances of Scott Joplin's opera Treemonisha in Andover and Cambridge.

Mr. Thomas is a graduate of the Oberlin Conservatory and Pennsylvania State University. His work has been, and continues to be, supported by grants from the Rockefeller Foundation, Kenan Foundation, Massachusetts Arts Council and the Abbot Academic Association.

He is a member of the Essex Ensemble and director of performance at Phillips, where he conducts the Andover Chamber Players, the Academy Symphony and Chamber orchestras, Cantata Choir, Gospel Choir and the Phillips Academy Community Chorus.

Soprano soloist Suzanne Dimmock, a graduate of the University of New Hampshire and University of Maryland, holds a master's degree in music performance. She has performed as soloist in several operas, including Magic Flute, Marriage of Figaro and Zaide. She has appeared as soloist at PA in performances of Israel in Egypt, Carmina Burana, Messiah and Dido and Aeneas.

Most recently she appeared as soloist with the Andover Choral Society in a performance of Haydn's Lord Nelson Mass.

Miss Dimmock, an Andover resident, sings regularly on a weekly cable program featuring sacred and gospel music.

Soloist Teresa Morgan, a graduate of Boston University, has sung with Emmanuel Church of Boston, the Boston Cecelia and the Nashua Choral Society.

She has appeared as soloist with PA's Cantata Choir and Community Chorus, Merrimack Valley Philharmonic and Chorus Pro Musica of Boston. She has also sung at Christ, South and West Parish churches in Andover.

Most recently, Ms. Morgan was technical assistant for the production of Scott Joplin's opera, Treemonisha.

William Thomas will direct the Phillips Academy Cantata Choir and Chamber Orchestra in two performances of Mozart's Requiem.

An Andover resident, she is chairwoman of the Andover Town Hall Organ Project and is an assistant in the PA music office. She is the soprano soloist at St. Michael's Episcopal Church in Marblehead.

Soloist Gregory Jackson, a graduate of Adelphi University in Garden City, Long Island, and the University of Lowell, holds a master's degree in vocal performance. He has appeared as soloist in operas and oratorios in the eastern United States and abroad.

Mr. Jackson completed a chamber music tour of Italy in October. He performed in Treemonisha in the role of Remus.

He sings regularly at Hancock United Church of Christ in Lexington and is the program assistant at the Multi Cultural Arts Center in Cambridge.

Baritone soloist Santo Cataudella of North Andover, teaches at Boston University's Goldman Graduate School of Dentistry.

Dr. Cataudella has appeared as soloist throughout New England and abroad.

He has performed with such groups as Phillips Academy Cantata Choir, Chorus and Community Chorus, Phillips Exeter Choir, Merrimack Valley Philharmonic Society, Chorus Pro Musica of Boston, and the Boston Pops.

More good news for Collins Center patrons Merrimack Rep accepts unused tickets

Merrimack Repertory Theatre in Lowell has offered to honor all unused 1990-'91 tickets being held by Collins Center patrons.

"Cultural organizations are all members of the same family with a shared mission and a shared responsibility," said David G. Kent, MRT artistic director. "Individually and collectively we are committed to enhancing the quality of life in our communities. The loss of one calls for a positive response from all."

This cooperative effort by the Andover Endowment for the Arts and Merrimack Rep will enable Collins Center patrons to exchange their unused tickets to attend the remaining MRT productions.

Merrimack Repertory, established in 1979, performs in a recently refurbished theater that seats 385. The theater, located in Liberty Hall at 50 E. Merrimack St., is part of the Lowell Memorial Auditorium complex.

Collins Center subscribers and single ticket holders are invited to attend MRT's productions of Henrik Ibsen's An Enemy of the People March 15, 16 or 17 or Alan Ayckbourn's British comedy Table Manners April 19, 20 or 21.

Collins Center tickets will be honored with no extra charge on a one-for-one, first-come, first-served reservation basis. Reservations can be made through the MRT box office at 454-3926 between noon and 6 p.m. Monday through Friday.

MRT tickets should be picked up a half hour before show time on the date of the performance. Collins Center tickets must be presented at that time.

The Center for the Arts at the University of Lowell is offering a similar deal to Collins Center ticketholders: free tickets for one ULowell event. Call 934-4444 for information.

Troupe plans two productions

Andover Theatre Company has a busy winter planned. The troupe is in rehearsal with two productions that will open in Andover in March.

One is an adult comedy by Lanford Wilson, Hot L Baltimore, the other Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice's rock opera, Jesus Christ Superstar.

Hot L Baltimore takes place in a decaying hotel slated for the wrecking ball. The audience meets the inhabitants of this seedy relic. This adult material contains mature subject matter and language.

Andover artist exhibits her 'Lifescapes'

Andover artist Lynn Luscutoff will introduce her latest works, "Lifescapes," at Elysian Gallery in Chelmsford. The exhibit runs through March 15 from noon to 5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday.

The newly opened gallery is located at 17 Central Square.

Ms. Luscutoff is listed in "Who's Who in International Art" and "Who's Who in the East." Her watercolors and oils have been coined "lyrically expressist."

"I love to paint and to travel," the artist said. "I keep a visual diary as I go."

"I am often referred to as a 'painter on the go.' In the past few years I have had the opportunity to travel with some very exciting people to some especially stimulating places. I painted the sun rise over Tel Aviv and Kyoto. I enjoyed a curious audience on the banks of the West Lake in Hangzhou, China."

Ms. Luscutoff says she feels "blessed" to be able to communicate her feelings about world peace and

"Sharing these glimpses of myself and my perceptions makes me feel exposed, but for me there is only one way to color it and that is to color it bright," she said.

Student actors, actresses star at school

Several student actors are taking part in school productions.

Ward Russell, son of Anne Baldwin of Andover and Henry Russell of Wellesley and a senior at Cushing Academy, is playing the part of Simon in his school's performance of the Tony Award winning Broadway musical Big River.

Based on the Mark Twain classic, The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn, the performance will be held Thursday and Friday, March 7 and 8.

Mr. Russell will play alongside professional actor George Merritt, who starred as Jim in the original production. As artist-in-residence at Cushing Academy for the winter term, Mr. Merritt has appeared in Porgy and Bess, Ain't Misbehavin' and Lost in the Stars, for which he was nominated for a 1988 Drama Desk Award.

Mr. Russell also sang with the Cushing Academy barber-shop group at an alumni and parent reception at the Brookline Country Club in November.

There will be lots of singing and dancing on 42nd Street as the Pingree School presents its winter musical production March 13.

Among the leads is Doug Margerison, a sophomore from Andover, as Julian Marsh.

Rounding out the troupe are Erin Cowhig and Mellina Stapfer, who are freshmen. Sophomore Stuart Abelson and senior Eric Stapfer are helping man the technical crew.

Friday and Saturday performances of 42nd Street begin at 8 p.m., and the Sunday matinee is at 2:30 p.m. The musical will be performed in the Mary Weld Pingree Center for the Performing Arts, 537 Highland St., South Hamilton.

Tickets are $5.

Katie Karp, daughter of Marianne and Edward Karp of Andover, has been cast in the North Adams State College production of The Runners of Eldritch, scheduled for April 26.

Ms. Karp, a 1989 graduate of Andover High School, is pursuing a degree in early childhood education. She has appeared in several productions at the college.

Actors, actresses: auditions coming up

Several local theater troupes are holding auditions for upcoming productions.

The Andover Theater Company announces auditions for its spring drama, Extremities, to be presented in May.

The production requires one man and three women ranging in age between 20 and 40. Auditions will be held on the second floor of Old Town Hall on Main Street Monday and Tuesday, March 11 and 12, at 7 p.m.

Participants should prepare a short monologue. Additional readings will be from the script. A perusal script is available at the Memorial Hall Library reference desk.

It will be directed by Kimberly J. Enders.

Additional people will be needed for the many tasks required behind the scenes, such as stage crew, publicity, lighting and costuming. Anyone interested in these areas should also plan to attend. Ask to see Janet Alberich, the show's producer. The group can be reached at 475-4221.

North Reading Theatre Workshop will hold open auditions for the musical production of Mame, which will be performed at the J. Everett Collins Center in Andover June 28 and 29.

"Theatre Workshop is eager to utilize the professional facilities at the Collins Center for the first time," said president Don Aubrey. The Andover performing arts center has "full theatrical technology - complete with everything but the grease paint and applause.

"As Mame says, 'Life is a banquet' and that's just what this show offers to anyone who wants to participate," Mr. Aubrey said.

There are many speaking roles, as well as openings for singers and dancers in the story of the spirited Mame; her nephew, Patrick Dennis; "bosom buddy" Vera; and various friends and acquaintances from the 1920s through the '40s.

Jerry Herman's songs include such familiar favorites as "It's Today," "Open a New Window," "We Need a Little Christmas" and, of course, the title song.

Presenting an award-winning blockbuster musical like Mame in a theater like the Collins Center, affords resident director Paul D.

Greene "the opportunity to pull out the stops and plan a cast of 50 to 60, complete with lavish sets, period costumes and fully staged dance numbers," he says.

Auditions for the role of young Patrick (age 8-12, must sing) are slated for Sunday, March 3, from 4 to 6 p.m. only. Auditions for all adult roles are Sunday, March 3, from 6:30 to 11 p.m. and Monday, March 4, from 7 to 11 p.m.

All auditions will be at Union Congregational Church Hall, 148 Haverhill St. (off Route 62), North Reading. Call-backs will be Wednesday, March 6, by invitation only. Anyone interested in working on the production staff or back stage should drop by auditions. Call 681-0355 or 664-5995 for more information.

The Playhouse Dinner Theatre in Amesbury will hold auditions for the mystery comedy Catch Me If You Can! Saturday, March 9, from 9 to 11 a.m.

Prospective actors should bring a prepared reading and a current 5-by-7-inch photograph. For more information, call the Playhouse at 388-9444.

Group makes a merry Purim

Havurat Shalom, formerly the Andover Jewish Fellowship, will celebrate the Festival of Purim Saturday, March 2, from 3 to 5 p.m. with a carnival and holiday play.

Purim is the merriest Jewish holiday of the year, said member Evy McDade. "On this day we celebrate Queen Esther's victory over the wicked man Haman, who tried to destroy the Jewish people," she said. Children generally dress in costumes, play games and enjoy Purim pastries.

Havurat Shalom is a community of families committed to providing a Jewish identity and education for its members that is relevant to contemporary lives. Traditional Jewish practices are observed with modern interpretations and forms of expressions. Havurat Shalom sponsors a religious school as well as an ongoing calendar of holiday celebrations, discussion groups and social events.

For membership information and directions to the festival, call Ms. McDade at 470 1095.

St. Augustine's has renewal series

Monday's theme will be baptism. A Bible service, "Baptism: God's Call and Our Response," will be held at 7 p.m.

The theme Tuesday will be the Eucharist. Father Kolodziej's noontime Mass will be immediately followed by adoration of the Blessed Sacrament until 7 p.m., when he will lead a Communion service and benediction. "The Eucharist: Causing Us to Be Who We Are."

Wednesday's theme is reconciliation. A 7 p.m. penance service, "Reconciling with God and Others," will conclude the three-day renewal.

Gilbert Sorenson, 69

Owning Andover business

Gilbert Sorenson, 69, of Little Rock, Ark., died Tuesday, Feb. 19, in Arkansas.

Mr. Sorenson owned the biggest bike shop in Arkansas, the Southwest Bike Shop in Little Rock. He at one time owned Andover Building and Wrecking Co., which tore down the Andover Steam Laundry years ago, said his brother, Casper F. Sorenson of Salem, N.H.

AVIS plans annual meeting for March 12

With membership at an all-time high of more than 870 members, AVIS (Andover Village Improvement Society) is holding its annual meeting and program at the North Andover Country Club, Great Pond Road, North Andover, Tuesday, March 12.

The 6 p.m. cash bar social hour will be followed by dinner at 7 and the meeting at 8:15. The cost of the dinner is $17. If unable to attend the dinner, members are welcome to join the group for the program at 8:15.

The program features James Batchelder of Andover, trained as a commercial artist in Boston and presently an art teacher at Andover High School. Mr. Batchelder is on the board of the Andover Historical Society where he has been a popular lecturer. His love for the history of Andover has led to his participation in historical and preservation projects in Andover. His slides will feature historic insights into the West Parish and Baker's Meadow area.

This program is of special interest with the West Parish Meadow Fund Drive in full force. AVIS members are working hard to raise the remaining $155,000 by August 1992, a sum that would complete the purchase of this valuable property.

Leslie Morgan is staying ahead of cancer

By Lisa Boudreau

One year ago last February, Leslie Morgan, now a junior at Andover High School, learned she had bone cancer. She was diagnosed with osteosarcoma, a fast-growing bone cancer and tumor in her upper left arm.

Following one year's worth of aggressive chemotherapy and major bone replacement surgery last May, Ms. Morgan, 9 Blackberry Lane, has received one cancer free report from her doctor.

Though her outlook for a full recovery is promising, it hasn't been smooth sailing, the 17-year-old admits.

Because of chemotherapy, Ms. Morgan has heart and kidney damage, as well as sciatic nerve damage in her right leg and foot from the pressure exerted on her hip while she laid on her right side during a 13-hour operation on her left arm and shoulder.

The beginning

One year and three weeks ago, Ms. Morgan tripped and fell down a small set of four steps in her home. She was banged up and a little bruised, but she and her family, mother, Joan, father, Walter, and younger sister, Laura, 16, weren't overly concerned about the fall until the pain persisted.

"A week later I went out to eat with my family and I couldn't cut my steak, it was so painful," she said.

A trip to the family's orthopedic doctor and an X-ray revealed an abnormality in her left arm and shoulder. The next two days she went to Holy Family Hospital in Methuen for further tests and bone scans. They revealed an abnormality and possibly a tumor in her upper left arm. Next, she went to Children's Hospital in Boston for a biopsy.

"At this point we still didn't know what it was. We were thinking it might have been an infection or at worse, a tumor," she said. "We were praying it wouldn't be cancer."

One week after she first complained about the persistent pain, Ms. Morgan learned she had bone cancer. She said the doctors could have done a better job telling her. They first took Ms. Morgan's parents into a conference room and discussed her case for a full hour before she was told.

"I hate it when they tell my parents first," she said.

When she walked into the conference room, Ms. Morgan said she immediately looked at her mother. "She had this stony expression and I couldn't tell anything at all, but I knew it wasn't good," she said.

Once she knew, Ms. Morgan said she became very "business-like."

"My friends were crying, my parents were crying and I just wanted to know what it meant and what I was going to have to do," said Ms. Morgan.

She later learned her reaction to the diagnosis is very common among young adults.

"It's called the care-taker syndrome. It's very common. Instead of dealing with what is happening to them, they want to take care of everyone else around them who is being affected by the news. I kept going around to them and telling them I was going to be all right," she said.

The doctors wouldn't give the Morgans a prognosis for Leslie, but they said she wouldn't die.

Ms. Morgan was told her cancer was fast growing and was past the stage where radiation could shrink the tumor.

"My only option was chemotherapy and surgery," she said.

She dropped out of school and began a 10-week cycle of chemotherapy. The doctors scheduled surgery in May to remove the tumor and the surrounding bone and replace it with bone from a donor.

"They felt they caught the cancer early. I was told that just five years ago it would have meant automatic amputation," she said.

Ms. Morgan's doctor, Mark Gephardt, is a world-renowned surgeon who perfected this procedure, according to Ms. Morgan. One of his other patients Ms. Morgan came to know very well during her treatment at Children's Hospital was a girl her age who had flown here from Kuwait for a similar procedure.

The chemotherapy began the day after Ms. Morgan was diagnosed. She was told to order a wig before the chemotherapy caused her hair to fall out.

One funny anecdote about her one-year ordeal, and maybe the only one said Ms. Morgan, was the problems she encountered with buying the first of her two wigs.

"The first one ordered was a brown one just like the color of my natural hair," she said. She was told to wash the human-hair wig often.

"I washed it once and all the brown dye came out. Some of it was brown but the rest was made up of gray hair. My parents were so angry," she said.

Her Kuwaiti friend directed her to another wig shop where she chose a fair-haired wig. She said she's become very accustomed to being a blond and enjoys the new look.

Ms. Morgan had lots of side effects from chemotherapy. Not only did all her hair fall out, including her eyebrows and eyelashes, she also had severe nausea and her white blood cell count dropped very low and limited her ability to fight infections. She was in and out of Children's Hospital's bone marrow unit, where she could be treated in a completely sterile environment.

Because the chemicals are designed to kill fast growing cells, such as the cancer tumor in her arm, they also kill other fast growing cells in her body, such as mucus that is needed to protect internal organs. The result was painful internal sores and liver, kidney, hearing and neurological damage, she said.

She became so sick from the chemotherapy she couldn't eat. She lost almost 30 pounds from her 5-foot, 6-inch frame.

"They started getting worried when I got down to 100 pounds," she said.

"I felt so lousy from the chemo and the mouth sores I was glad I didn't want to eat. If I had it would have hurt too much," she said.

After her 10-week chemotherapy cycle was finished more bone scans were taken and her surgery was scheduled for the third week in May. It originally was scheduled for the second week of that month, but Ms. Morgan wanted to go to her junior prom.

"I was feeling up to it and I had the perfect dress," she said.

In Ms. Morgan's case the bone from above her left elbow to the top of her shoulder, where the tumor was located, was removed and replaced with bone, muscles and nerves from a donor.

Not an exact match

Donor bone and recipient bone don't have to be an exact match as some organs such as kidneys, she said, so grafting the donor to her bone was done right away.

The operation took 13 hours and during that time Ms. Morgan's sciatic nerve in her right hip was damaged, due to the pressure of her body weight that wasn't distributed properly. The result has been limited motion, pain and endless hours of physical therapy necessary so she could walk again.

"My leg gives me more problems and pain than my arm did," she said.

When Ms. Morgan awoke from the anesthesia, she told the recovery room nurse she couldn't feel her right leg. The nurse dismissed her complaint. She told her mother and father about her right leg and finally they were able to get a doctor to see her.

The doctors tested her leg, which by now felt cold to the touch and had turned a "funny color." They determined her sciatic nerve in her right side had been damaged during the long period she was tilted on her side for the operation.

"It's the worse pins and needles feeling you could ever imagine, only 100 times worse," she said.

She spent two weeks in the hospital following her surgery. She was in a torso bodycast that kept her left arm at a 90-degree angle and her hand pointing up. She also had a cast on her leg that kept her foot flexed so it wouldn't cramp and the heel tendon shorten.

The first body cast was fitted before her operation. It didn't fit after the operation due to the severe swelling in her arm. A second cast had to be made. She spent last summer in a hospital bed her parents set up in the first-floor dining room. After a few months her leg and foot recuperated enough for her to support her own weight and get around with a cane and not wheelchair.

"My arm stopped hurting before my foot did," she said.

After surgery she began another cycle of chemotherapy for 32 weeks. The doctors stopped her chemotherapy the first week of December when she had four weeks left in the cycle.

"The mucus membrane around my heart was damaged and every time it beat it rubbed against the membrane. It was so painful I couldn't lie down," Ms. Morgan said.

She has been out of her cast for months now and walks with a slight limp in her right leg. She has almost complete feeling and use of her left arm, hand and fingers. The surgery removed some of her shoulder muscle so she can't lift her arm past elbow height, but she said she is feeling well.

"There's no way to tell if it (cancer) is going to come back," Ms. Morgan said. "If it does it most likely will in two to three years. I'll also have a higher risk of cancer the rest of my life."

Because of the internal damage done by the chemotherapy, especially heart damage, Ms. Morgan tires very easily. She said she has to be realistic about what she can and cannot do. Her family and friends have been a great source of strength, she said.

"I would tell anyone who was going to face an ordeal like mine that the most important thing to do is not alienate their family and friends," she said. "Because even though you are the one going through all the physical turmoil, they're also in pain too. You've got to remember they're going through it with you. If it weren't for my family and friends who were so supportive, I don't think I would have come through this so well."

Her bone scan came out clear and they will do another one in three months and then again in six months.

Ms. Morgan has been studying and finishing work on her junior year's classes. She plans to attend Andover High as a senior next fall. She has already begun thinking about college and a career in elementary education and moderate special needs.

Phase II school cuts . . .

High School

The reduction of two English teachers will bring the total number of full-time teachers to 10, plus one department head who teaches part time. Currently the 12 English teachers teach five classes each and a department head teaches four classes, for a total of 64 classes each six day cycle at the school, said Department Head Bill Becker.

According to Mr. Becker, the cuts will affect two tenured teachers. Each has taught in Andover for five years, and one has 15 years experience teaching in another system.

The cuts will reduce the number of possible classes to 54 each six day cycle, increase class size and it's possible journalism and public speaking classes will go.

If two English teachers and one social studies teacher go, the cut will definitely reduce the flexibility to coordinate classes taught by both English and social studies teachers, said Mr. Becker.

An example of this team teaching program is the American studies class at AHS. Two class periods are scheduled back to back and the two teachers have the flexibility to coordinate the classes and discuss both American history and its literature or teach each subject individually if they choose.

Social studies department head Richard Collins anticipates the reduction of one teacher from the social studies program to decrease the number of students in each class next year.

Mr. Collins' recommendation would be to not top off one area, but have a little giving in all areas, he said.

There's no question that the quality of education is going to deteriorate some. If the social studies department loses a teacher at the high school, the programs will suffer and the kids will ultimately suffer," Mr. Collins said.

The .6 math position and .4 science position slated to be cut under Phase II are currently filled by one full time employee who teaches three math courses and two science courses. Al Cayot, science department head, foresees increased class sizes if his department loses its part-time teacher. Reducing a section of "action chemistry," where students get hands on experience in basic chemistry, or other classes, may be necessary, he said.

Teacher-pupil ratios will also rise in the math classes if the .6 math instructor is cut, said Doug Walshe, math department head.

There are currently 12 employees in the math department: nine teach a full load of five sections; one department head teaches four sections; one teacher has four sections of math and also works with the school's community service program; and one part-time teacher has three sections.

"Where it will be most noticeable is in the level-three math classes. We generally like to see ratios of 15 or 20 (students) to one (teacher). That way the teacher can give the students the individual assistance they need," Mr. Walshe said.

The level-one math classes, or accelerated classes for college-bound students, can generally operate successfully with as many as 28 students, he said.

Cuts in other departments such as business, home economics and industrial arts will increase enrollment in other disciplines, said Mr. Becker, of the English department.

"Another wrinkle in the equation is that enrollment most likely will be going up in other subject areas once industrial arts and home ec classes are canceled," said Mr. Becker, referring to the reduction of the one and only full-time industrial arts teacher at the school, the home economics teacher and the TV coordinator, all of whom are on the Phase II cut list.

The cut of one full time teacher from both the home economics and industrial arts programs will leave zero employees to run the classes now offered.

Currently, Fred Baker is the only industrial arts teacher at the high school. He teaches what he says is one oversized class of technical drawing with 22 students, plus five independent study students in it, two classes of wood technology, one with 21 students and the other with 12 students, and four sections of basic photography with an average of 18 students in each.

The biggest and most important impact (if industrial arts goes) will be that kids going on to college who want to take engineering courses won't have technical drawing. They'll be behind the eight ball compare to other first year students who had the training in high school," said Mr. Baker.

The high school invested in computers and technical drawing software three years ago when town meeting voters approved a systemwide computer plan. This software gives technical drawing students an opportunity to work with the equipment professional engineers and architects are using today, Mr. Baker said.

High School Principal Wilbur Hixon said even if Phase II cuts have to be made, he hopes to keep technical drawing at the school. The course is now listed on the school's preregistration list, he said.

Home economics

Jean Gilbert is the only home economics teacher at the high school. She teaches two sections of child development, with about 16 students in each, and three sections of food and nutrition, with a total of 56 students distributed among the sections.

The child-development students run a nursery school at AHS for 90 minutes each school day.

Under Phase II cuts, the nursery school, which services 14 3- and 4-year olds, will be eliminated. The nursery school runs for one nine-week and one 10-week session. The program raises money through tuition for its own expenses.

The reduction of a .4 position in the foreign language department will increase class sizes, said Sally O'Brien, department head.

This year, for the first time, student interest in German has enabled Ms. O'Brien to enlarge the number of German classes. A .4 cut would jeopardize that scheduling option, and drive pupil-teacher ratios higher, she said.

"Where it is most likely to hurt is in the beginning classes where more teacher-student interaction is essential," she said.

A Phase II cut of a .5 art position at AHS would leave a 13-year veteran of the art teaching staff in Andover with just a half-time job, said Diana Kolben, fine arts and music program adviser.

Overall, there are 13 art teachers in Andover's public schools. The reduction of 3.75 positions systemwide would lay off five teachers, said Ms. Kolben. All five teachers have four or more years experience each in the Andover school system.

JoAnn Saura, a business teacher at the high school, said the effect of a .4 reduction in her department hasn't been determined yet. Students are choosing next year's classes this month and she believes once student interest is established, scheduling of business classes will be done.

Currently, there are five teachers in the business department teaching accounting, technological tools (a required course for

School Committee candidates talk issues

The Townsman will ask the four candidates for the two open positions on the School Committee a weekly question until the March 25 election.

How do you feel about the proposal to expand the before- and after- school day-care program at the Shawsheen School and who should run it, a private organization such as SHED, or the town?

Susan Poore
"I'm in favor of the extended day-care program but only if it is at all elementary schools in the system. And I think it should be privatized and that there be payment for utilities and custodial services as well as any other cost that would be associated with that use."

Michael Frishman

"I would be interested in extending and expanding use of all school facilities for all ages to whatever extent possible."

"Shed should run it, or some other private entity if for some reason that seems appropriate."

"I would prefer to see it under the direct management of a development and community services director, not under the direct management of school employees either a contracted structure, such as SHED, or employees such as presently under the Department of Community Services model."

Susan Jenkins

Ms Jenkins did not yet have all the answers to all her questions about the proposal, she said.

"My initial reaction is I am in favor of before- and after- day care provided it is run privately or by the DCS. I don't think it should be necessarily run by the School Committee or the central staff."

"It should be run by the DCS or a private enterprise that, again, is nominally under the control of the School Committee. DCS does have experience in that area through the summer programs that they run."

John Wragg

"Day care is a commercially developed concept and it should be privatized. It should not be part of the school system because it is a growing need," and would have to be expanded to other grades."

"We shouldn't get involved in it. It is not a scholastic function to provide day care. I think we need day care, there's no question about it, but it's not a scholastic function."

"It is a town-owned building and the town maintains it. If the Board of Selectmen choose to use that building in one purpose or other," such as to rent it, the question of legality comes up."

"But that's the prerogative of the selectmen and not the School Committee."

Here's what happens to schools with no override teacher will be reduced to half time and the half-time person who now teaches 14 sections of ninth-grade health "rites of passages" (a required course for graduation) will be let go.

"A couple of years ago (in 1988) the Andover health programs were recognized by the U.S. Department of Education as model programs," said Ms. O'Brien.

"The cut of two people is going to affect our ability to provide the same level of service."

The cut of two physical education teachers at the high school will reduce the staff to three full-time instructors, said Richard Bourdelais, physical education program adviser.

State mandates require that ninth and 10th graders have at least 60 hours of gym each year. Mr. Bourdelais sees the cuts affecting juniors and sophomores because there are no state mandates past the tenth grade.

Currently, Andover is within mandates at all grade levels, he said.

"What it means is that we are not going to be able to have some of the physical education programs we have had in the past, especially at the high school," Mr. Bourdelais said.

"It will affect the trend we've been following to get away from the game-type program and introduce more life-long fitness skills and their health benefits," he said.

Under Phase II cuts another guidance counselor will be eliminated on top of one already cut in Phase I, said Ruby Easton, department head. Currently, the department has one chairperson who has a caseload of students, plus administrative duties and five additional case load counselors.

There are three support people, one department secretary and one registrar at the school, and one aide who oversees the career center in the library annex.

The career center has college catalogs, computer files, video tapes from colleges and other post-high-school opportunities information.

"The impact will be that the counselor-to-student ratio will be going up, which is going to put some constraints on the college admission process," said Mrs. Easton.

The suggested ratio is approximately 200 students to each counselor. If the Phase II cuts occur and a total of two case load counselors are cut, the ratios could reach higher than 265 to one, she said.

"We just won't have enough time to do everything and we're also going to have to eliminate the peer counseling program."

The one and only television coordinator at the high school is slated to be cut under Phase II. She is the person who staffs the school's TV studio, assists teachers and students in making video presentations, and teaches the local cable access course.

"Students would still be able to get some training, I believe, but it wouldn't be on the level it is now and most likely not during school hours," said Maureen Lindsey, AHS TV coordinator.

Middle schools

Two teaching positions at both middle schools, for a total of four, are listed as tentative under Phase II. Mark McQuillan, superintendent of schools, said Tuesday night that it looks like the cuts are moving more toward definite. He said it depends on scheduling at the schools and if each building can function with two fewer teachers, either in core or extracurricular subjects.

The .5 cut in counseling at each middle school would leave one full-time counselor at both, with one other swinging between the two schools, said Norma Roberts, a guidance counselor at Doherty Middle School.

"I've done the swing between schools before and it is most satisfactory," said Mrs. Roberts.

"When kids have a crisis they don't wait until it's your school's turn to have two people on duty."

A .4 cut in Doherty's music program and a .5 cut in West's art program will increase class sizes in art and reduce performing music and choral opportunities for students, said Ms. Kolben.

Department head stipends are also slated to be cut. No planning has been made at either school as to if or how those duties will be reassigned.

Doherty Middle School

A .55 reduction in the business department would affect two full-time teachers at the school. Currently, one teaches key boarding and the other teaches computers.

A .5 cut in home economics would result in a reshuffling of the one full-time cooking teacher and the part-time sewing and crafts teacher. The same cut, .5 in industrial arts, would also force a realignment of duties of one full-time and the one part-time industrial arts teacher, said Bruce Macki, assistant principal at Doherty.

The three full-time gym teachers would be reduced by .5, said Mr. Bourdelais, raising the current ratios of 19 students to 1 teacher to a higher level.

The .5 cut in music would most likely affect the school's performing choral and instrumental groups, said Ms. Kolben.

West Middle School

Neither Principal Bill Hart nor Assistant Principal Anthony Covino could be reached by phone to comment on the impact on the school's business department, which is slated to be reduced by one full-time position. Also to be reduced at West Middle are the home economics and industrial arts departments, slated for a .5 cut each; physical education department, slated to be reduced by .7; and one instructional assistant.

Elementary schools

The cuts in Phase II in the four elementary schools are combinations of art and music positions. The cuts would require elementary classroom teachers to take over more art instruction responsibilities in their classes and would reduce the number of music personnel to the level where teachers would float among the four buildings. The School Committee is still discussing what would happen to the students during their former art and music instruction time and what teachers would manage that time.

The ability to continue the lessons program would also be affected, said Diana Kolben. Currently lessons in string instruments begin at grade three and wind lessons at grade five. Ms. Kolben foresees lessons available to only beginners under Phase II conditions.

Special education

If Phase II cuts occur, the high school will lose a .5 learning disabilities tutor. Currently, there are one full-time and two half-time tutors at AHS. They provide academic support for students having trouble in regular classrooms as well as special education students mainstreamed into regular classrooms, said Donna Perowski, learning disabilities program head.

The two middle schools will split the loss of a .5 learning disability tutor cut, she said. Currently, there are two learning disability tutors at Doherty, one full-time and one half-time. At West there are also two people, one full-time and one half-time learning disability tutor.

The four elementary schools will share the loss of two full-time learning disability tutors. Currently, there are two part-time tutors at Bancroft, one full-time and one .8 time tutors at Sanborn, one full-time and two half-time tutors at West and one .8 time tutor at South, said Mrs. Perowski.

"Systemwide the tutoring groups will be larger" if Phase II cuts are made said Mrs. Perowski.

It doesn't seem right

The Finance Committee came out with a bold proposal this week. Joanne Marden, chairwoman of the FinCom, read a prepared statement to the Board of Selectmen Monday that asked why the town doesn't appeal to its employees to forego wage increases to save jobs.

"We are not going to develop long-term solutions to Andover's budget problems without controlling labor costs," she said.

Contracts for teachers, police and fire employees, and those who work at the Department of Public Works are different, and it's close to impossible to say exactly what the salary increases are, given step increases determined by number of years of service and various other ingredients. However, we know that the budget for teachers' salaries in Fiscal Year 1992 must increase 9.6 percent. And we know that wages for the fire department would have to increase 8.7 percent to employ the same individuals next year as included in this year's budget. And so on.

Something has got to give.

In the private sector, people are being laid off. In the private sector, people are taking salary cuts, while others are grateful for the same salary they had last year.

At least one teacher argues that those in the private sector will again receive large raises when the economy recovers, but that teachers never receive large raises and so have to demand step raises, bit by bit.

We are not saying that teachers are paid well. What we are saying is that everyone has to make sacrifices while we're in recession.

Chances are, the FinCom didn't expect to be successful at persuading all town employees to re-negotiate their contracts and forego their raises. The FinCom wants to go on record as having a large problem paying thousands of dollars in employee raises while laying off some employees. It just doesn't seem right.

Notes on errors, Mary McGarry Morris, recycling, a reader survey, the economy and blood pressures

By Perry Catlin

We at the Townsmen are proud of the relatively new computer and printing systems that we have because we think they help us do a better job laying out the paper and offering more alternatives to advertisers.

However, sometimes we get in trouble with our high-tech equipment and although I'd like to blame it on the dog (you know, the one who ate the children's homework), I can't. In fact it was I who made this mistake.

David Batson of 13 Stevens Circle took the time to write a letter last week ("This is not the time to protest the war," page 36), but when we had to jump the letter onto page 37, we covered up Mr. Batson's signature. If you've ever laid out a newspaper page or even done some desktop publishing, you'll understand that we spend a great deal of time drawing boxes and pushing keys that tell the computer to send a certain story, letter or press release into the box. I made some changes to that page and didn't realize, in deadline rush, that I'd covered up the letter's signature. Our apologies to Mr. Batson and to you, the readers.

We're trying something new this week - a reader survey. We've asked you to clip the coupon on page 6, fill it out and get it back to us by Monday, March 4. We want to know what you think of Andover having before- and after-school care for children in grades K-2. Brookline is famous for its program and other communities offer it, too. The idea came up here as a way to help pay to keep Shawsheen School open. That school would be used to house Andover school children before and after school, for parents who would pay for it. Please respond with the coupon. Drop it off or mail it in. We value your opinion.

The editorial and advertising departments at newspapers usually try to remain completely separate, but today I'm going to mention a new section in our classified ads: It's called Recycle and I'm mentioning it because I think it's such a good idea and because I would like to participate in the attempt to save the environment.

It was Jennie Cline of Phillips Academy who suggested the idea. She saw such a listing in the Bar Harbor Times. If you have something that you no longer need that might be useful to someone else, this is the place to mention it.

For instance, the clip from the Bar Harbor Times that Ms. Cline sent me had five classified ads under Recycle: a half full gallon drum of kerosene; 10 venetian blinds; boxes that someone had used in moving; a plea by someone for Styrofoam peanuts - the things that are used in packing boxes; and someone offering to come to your house to take away your bagged leaves.

Call us at 475-1943 to place a classified Recycle ad. I'm looking forward to reading about one person's trash/another's treasure.

I just finished reading A Dangerous Woman, written by Andover author Mary McGarry Morris. I enjoyed it so much I felt as if some thing special had gone out of my life when I finished. I decided I had to read Ms. Morris's first book, Vanished. The morning after the night I finished A Dangerous Woman, I went over to Memorial Hall Library, only to find that other patrons had the same idea. The library's two copies of Vanished were out. I bought it in paperback.

LETTERS

She's against the war and she supports troops

Editor, Townsmen:

It was with a great deal of interest and not a little dismay that I read the letters to the editor section of the Feb. 21 issue of the Townsmen. I am talking specifically about the letters that were written concerning antiwar protests and supporting the troops in the Gulf.

I would like to start off by saying that I am against the war in the Persian Gulf for a number of reasons, not the least of which is my concern over the lives of our men and women who are there.

I feel quite strongly that being against the war and supporting the troops are not mutually exclusive concepts. I also feel that it is important for everyone, including the troops in the Gulf, to understand that to be against the war is to be neither unpatriotic or unsupportive. To my way of thinking, the whole basis for the antiwar movement is the support of the troops; we want them home where they belong, safe and in one piece.

It is concern for them as well as concern for the civilians who are caught in this conflict that spurs the protest movement.

Close to 60,000 Americans died in Vietnam. The way the returning veterans were treated is a national shame. Because popular opinion was so polarized they were spat on by the protesters and ignored by the government. Even today, many Vietnam veterans cannot get the help they need and deserve. It is important that the Persian Gulf veterans not be treated the same way. That is why I feel that it is important for people on both sides of the issue to understand that to be "anti-war" does not mean that we do not support the troops or that we are in some way less patriotic than anyone else.

This brings me to the second purpose for writing this letter: the issue of the protests themselves. There are people who believe that any protest against the war should be suppressed and they give any number of reasons for this. This is patently ridiculous.

One of the basic tenets of a democratic government is that everyone, regardless of race or creed, will have a say in what their government does. The concept of freedom of speech, as set down in the Bill of Rights, is what separates us from countries like Iraq or (even Kuwait for that matter). To prohibit people from speaking their minds whether you agree with what they are saying or not is to go against everything that I was taught this country stands for.

In fact, America exists because of protest. If the Sons of Liberty and other malcontents had not protested the English rule of the colonies, we would all be eating crumpets and watching cricket games.

It is protest that won women the right to vote and minorities the right to be treated as equals. It is every American's right to express their opinion. In this country expressing your opinion is more than a privilege, it is a responsibility. It is up to us as a people to keep our government honest, whether the issue is a war or education. This country is big enough for many different opinions. To paraphrase Voltaire, "I may not agree with what you say but I will defend to the death your right to say it." I ask the same consideration from the people who disagree with me.

She supports pay-by-bag trash disposal

Editor, Townsmen:

Please support the proposal for having households "pay-by-the-bag" for the trash they generate.

We pay for the amount of water and electricity and fuel we actually use and we should pay also according to the amount of trash disposal we use. Each household can cut down on the amounts of these items if it wants to and should not have to pay for other households, which choose to use more.

We can decrease trash by recycling, returning deposit bottles, composting, reusing boxes and grocery bags and choosing to buy items in minimum packaging. (One of the biggest sources of household trash is the amount of ridiculous overpackaging used. If we are trying to cut down on trash, we'll tend to choose less packaged items and industry will soon find ways to decrease packaging.)

The selectmen should make one change before a "pay-by-the-bag" system is started: Provide a drop-off collection site for corrugated cardboard (flattened and tied.) We used to pick up corrugated but the present recycling contract does not include it. There is a steady market for corrugated (and also it is bulky) so we should not have to pay to get rid of it.

"Pay-by-the-bag" would help to deal with Andover's budget problems, would cut down on trash, would promote recycling and would give each of us the control of paying only for the trash we (not others) generate. The nuisance of the few who may dump trash in vacant land, etc. can be dealt with and is small compared with the big problems "pay-by-the-bag" can solve.

"Pay-by-the-bag" is now being used successfully in many communities and is soon to be started in many others. Our throw-away society, quite a recent phenomenon, now is shown to be an extremely expensive and polluting mistake. It is time to reverse our habits and use this new system.

Paying by the bag is an excellent idea

Editor, Townsmen:

On the subject of paying for trash collection, I think buying trash bags from the town and thereby paying according to usage is an excellent idea for the following reasons:

1. As I recall, we bought "Andover" bags several years ago and we could get them at our local supermarkets among other places. It was not a big deal. I would happily pay Andover for trash bags instead of "Glad" or "Hefty," even at a premium, knowing that I was helping to save town funds for other needed services.

2. We taxpayers have considerable control over the amount of trash we generate. Our planet, on the other hand, has limited capacity to absorb our trash. Paying the town for our trash bags is a fair incentive to help us remember to buy less packaging, recycle more and so produce less trash for hauling away.

3. The removal contracts with the town will only become more expensive as the Northeast runs out of options for disposal of its refuse. We can learn now to reduce our trash and pay less doing so, or we can learn later at possibly much greater expense.

More recycling could save some positions

Editor, Townsmen:

After reading about Andover's garbage and recycling programs for several weeks now, I feel the town of Andover needs to redirect some of its energies towards trash pickup and recycling.

Before recycling became mandatory, we were voluntarily recycling glass and plastic twice a month and paper recycling included additional items such as all sorts of boxed packages, which greatly reduced the amount of trash to throw away. Now we can only recycle plastic once a month and paper and glass recyclables no longer include any type of cardboard.

Andover Recycling is in favor of charging fees to have trash picked up and recyclables picked up for free but why should residents pay to have cereal boxes and other packages picked up when we used to be able to recycle these items? We could save police and firefighter positions and possibly other areas of the town's financial problems if the town recycled more efficiently.

those adjectives to describe the characters).

Ms. Morris is, in my opinion, a crafter of character. Her characters act just as you'd expect, and she makes you unable to wait to see what happens to them. I recommend her books and I am looking forward to the one she's currently writing. ***

If you want some encouragement about the economy, ask an Andover realtor how his/her work has been lately. He or she most likely will tell you work has been hectic and that people are looking and buying. One woman realtor told me recently that she sold three houses in one week and expected to close on another early the next week. She said the agents in her office were exhausted from all the showing they'd been doing lately.

VNA HomeCare was kind enough to send Marianna Doulames to take our blood pressure here at the Townsmen last week. For the most part, we are a healthy group, but she took our blood pressures on a Friday morning when most of us are relatively relaxed. We're doing it again Wednesday morning, during deadline. If the results are interesting, we'll let you know.

Ms. Doulames told us she and two other nurses from VNA HomeCare took more than 70 people's blood pressures at the Stevens Street post office last week.

Reader supports the library and its video policy

Editor, Townsman:

We in Andover are very fortunate to have access to such a fine public library. Having lived in this community for almost 14 years, I have had the opportunity to utilize Memorial Hall Library as a parent, a graduate student and a pleasure reader. I have also had the honor of serving on the Memorial Hall Library Board of Trustees from 1985-1990.

Based on concerns raised by Jean Palmer, the policies of the Andover Memorial Hall Library are being reviewed by the library board. This was decided after a thorough study of area libraries by two dedicated board members. Karen Herman and Mel Jurgen spent last summer visiting libraries and reviewing their many policies. Based on their study, the library board revised the previous access policy at Memorial Hall Library. As far as I know, this new equal-access policy has proven satisfactory to all.

Each month additional policies are being reviewed in light of last summer's study. Based on their study and the success of the policy in assuring that videos are returned on time and in the proper fashion, I heartily support the continuation of the present policy. It would be wonderful if all people would be considerate enough to think of the next user and the cost of replacing lost or damaged videos. It would also be great if everyone of all ages was responsible. Given the fact that not all people are considerate and responsible, the modest fees ($2 per day for overdue videos and $5 for a video dropped in the outside book drop) encourage users to be more considerate and responsible.

Many children are interested in the growing video collection. If all families communicated effectively, I could agree that people under 18 should be allowed to check out videos. Unfortunately, communication is not always complete in the best of families. Therefore, having an adult check out the videos is the best way to assure their timely and proper return. Placing the children's videos in the children's section where young children are likely to be checking out materials makes it more convenient for parents as they pick up their children. The fees can quickly add up if an older child fails to inform their family of a video loan. Few children have the funds to pay their own fines. Even at the video store, the parents take the responsibility for all family member loans by providing a deposit or credit card number.

The simplest way to maintain the library video collection is to leave it as it has been. With dwindling resources and many public layoffs predicted, the policy requires less follow-up time by the already stretched staff. It brings in some revenue, which is greatly needed in these difficult economic times. It is also in keeping with library video policies across Massachusetts and the nation.

I applaud the hard work of the library director, board of trustees and staff in providing quality library services in these difficult times. The Memorial Hall Library is in good hands and welcomes public input as the various policies are reviewed. Let's move on to the next policy.

Invasion of the cigarettes

Editor, Townsman:

Several weeks ago my son, Austin, age 4, and I went to the Market Basket on North Main Street to do some grocery shopping. I grabbed one of the shopping baskets available at the entrance to the store. A little while later while pointing at the basket Austin exclaimed, "Look Daddy - cigarettes." I noticed that all four sides of my shopping basket contained advertisements for cigarettes, two sides including a full color picture of a pack of cigarettes.

I spoke to the store manager, Mr. Matthew Matson. He told me that he would not consider removing the baskets but pointed out that there were plain baskets available at the entrance to the store. In a more recent visit to Market Basket, 15 of the baskets with cigarette advertising were available directly at the entrance to the store, three plain baskets were perched behind a large sign on the automatic teller machine, out of plain view of anyone entering the store.

Every customer in the store that I noticed using a shopping basket had selected one with cigarette advertising. Any child in the store, independently of the type of basket selected by his or her parent was being exposed to cigarette advertising in virtually every aisle of the store.

While it is disturbing that a business establishment that depends largely on the Andover community for its customers cares more about boosting profits from the sale of cigarettes than it does about promoting a habit that kills thousands of Americans yearly, it is shocking that this establishment would support such advertising in the plain view of children.

Those readers that share my concern should refuse to use baskets that contain cigarette advertising. They should take the time to share their concern with Mr. Matson. If Market Basket refuses to remove the baskets they should consider taking their business to Shaw's, Star Market or the Earth Food Store, none of which resort to this type of advertising.

Mourning Norman Smith

Editor, Townsman:

It was with deep sorrow that I learned of the passing of Norman Smith, senior custodian at Bancroft School. Having known him for over 15 years through my position in DCS and more personally these past few years because my daughter attends Bancroft, I would like to pay tribute to one of the nicest, hard working, caring gentlemen I have had the pleasure of knowing in Andover.

He was a man who always had a smile and a good word. Children and adults alike would visit his "office," and he seemed to draw people around him all the time. He was especially concerned, optimistic and comforting to me during the past year and a half.

Norman's passing is truly a loss to Bancroft School and the Andover community.

RECYCLING

By Virginia Cole

Recycling figures for the last two months of 1990 hold up well, though 61 percent of the houses participating is not as high as we hope for.

November's tonnage was 242.83 tons and December had 245.02 tons. November and December 1989 were only 134 and 149 before paper and glass recycling were mandatory.

Waste Management is doing a very professional job in Andover. Two trucks are on the road each day beginning at 7 a.m. and a supervisor in a pick-up truck roams the town, checking on the performance and on you. Waste Management knows each house that puts out a blue bin and pretty much when the bin goes out. Complaints that bins were missed are followed up and for the moment are being picked up even though the supervisor knows that the bins weren't out when the truck went by. Soon, the supervisor expects to have notices available to put in your bin when the rules have not been followed - lateness, materials in plastic bags, dirty glass, corrugated cardboard boxes and loose paper.

Recycling, in fact all of waste disposal, is a business and there are reasons for the rules. The trucks start at 7 a.m. and they don't always start in the same place each day or go at the same rate. Trucks do have problems: Traffic can be difficult, drivers don't show up and the dispatcher has to make changes - they have never or will ever tell you at what hour the truck will come by your house. It is your job to get the bins and bags out by 7 a.m. They will take wet materials. Paper must be in bags or tied. Dumping a bin of loose paper in the wind will not improve the look of your neighborhood.

No plastic can be used in these loads. Removing plastic bags from your load takes time and then it has to be left in your bin, again to blow around the neighborhood. Just don't take those plastic bags at the grocery store. Plastic cannot be recycled with glass or paper. Glass must be clean because it has to be stored in several places sometimes before it goes to the furnaces and rodents and insects as well as odor can be a problem. This, for you, usually just means putting the mayonnaise, catsup and mustard jars through the dishwasher. Labels do not have to be removed. Lids should be. Dirty glass may not be taken. If the whole load is contaminated, that affects the price. Remember these goods have to be sold.

In December, Waste Management figured 16,110 stops were possible in Andover; 10,403 were made. Don't hide your blue bin under or behind your trash. Put it out on the opposite side of the driveway where it can be easily seen.

I talked to Waste Management about corrugated cardboard and tin cans. Andover did not specify these materials in the contract bids and so Waste Management is not willing to take them without further negotiation. I believe negotiation is often a word that means money. We won't be negotiating this year.

Liz Davies is key to Notre Dame Academy b'ball team

By Rick Harrison

Two years ago the varsity basketball team at Notre Dame Academy in Tyngsboro was struggling.

The small, all-girl Catholic school had lost its opening game in the Tyngsboro High Christmas Tournament, so Coach Mike O'Brien figured he had nothing to lose.

"We had a freshman playing center on the JV team, and my assistant (Dave Nugent) told me she could help the varsity," recalled O'Brien. "I didn't know much about her because freshmen and sophomores usually play junior varsity at Notre Dame."

"Our chance to win the tournament was gone, and since we hadn't been getting any production inside I played her the final two games. She made things happen out there. The other girls responded and we looked 10 points better."

The rest, as they say, is history.

Andover's Liz Davies hasn't been out of the starting lineup since.

Now a junior star, Davies is currently bidding her time with her Lancer teammates as they await their opening game in the Eastern Mass. Division 3 North Sectional Tournament this Saturday, March 2, at 1 p.m.

NDA, which finished the regular season undefeated (17-0) and earned the top seed and a first-round bye, will host either Bedford or Lynnfield in that quarterfinal round contest.

Notre Dame is currently at the top primarily because of Liz Davies, although the program was very successful before she arrived and will undoubtedly continue to be strong after she graduates in June of 1992.

Liz Davies

"Without appearing like a one-dimensional team, we try to get the ball to Liz every time down the floor," explained O'Brien.

In other words, if you have a talent like Liz Davies you exploit it.

"She can play with anyone around," noted her coach.

The resident of 3 Cardinal Lane has repeatedly backed up that statement with strong performances against centers from Division 1 and 2 schools.

Awesome record

Notre Dame is 51-5 the past three years with Davies in the pivot. The Lancers have won three straight Catholic Suburban League titles and two Catholic Conference Tournament championships with her.

They also came back to win the Christmas Tournament championship this season.

Two years ago, after the holiday tourney loss, NDA went on with Davies at center to post a 15-5 record and battle to the Eastern Mass. Division 3 championship game at Boston Garden. NDA was up by five at the half, but Norwell came out angry and scored 18 straight points at the start of the second half en route to victory.

Last year the Lancers were 19-1 and bowed out in the first round of the tourney when crosstown rival Tyngsboro High beat them (58-56) with a buzzer-beating bomb.

This year Davies and NDA hope to go all the way.

A three-time first-team league All-Star, Liz won the Catholic Suburban League scoring title this year after finishing second as a sophomore.

She is averaging 24 points per game this season, and scored a school-record 50 in a late-season 124-23 blasting of Girls' Catholic from Malden.

There was method to Coach

O'Brien's apparent madness in letting O'Brien stay in when the game was so lopsided.

"We weren't trying to run up the score (the opposing coach agreed), and I left Liz in there to make a point to the other coaches in our league."

The previous night Davies had been edged out in the voting for league MVP the coaches opting for a senior girl from St. Mary's of Lawrence.

"I was disturbed at the league's philosophy of not giving the Most Valuable Player award to an underclassman," explained O'Brien. "Suppose Liz hurts herself next year and can't play. We beat St. Mary's by 55 points and 30 points this season, so you tell me who the MVP is."

Putting that aside, Davies has poured in the points against stronger competition as well.

She ended the regular season with a 33-point performance in a non-league victory over Westford Academy, the Midland-Wachusett League champion and a Division 1 power in Central Massachusetts.

NDA also owns victories over tournament qualifiers Tyngsboro High and North Middlesex Regional, Davies tossing in 18 and 15 points respectively.

Seen enough

League rival Ursuline Academy has seen enough of Ms. Davies this season. She opened the year with a 17-point, 22-rebound, eight-steal effort against them

Students represent AHS at sports day celebration

Earlier this month, Holly Clark and Ayanna Littrean represented Andover High School as two positive, contributing female members of both their athletic teams and their school at the Massachusetts Girls and Women in Sports Day. The celebration was held in the chambers of the Massachusetts House of Representatives at the Statehouse on Beacon Hill.

The keynote address was delivered by former professional golfer Jane Blalock. Approximately 300 students from 150 school districts across Massachusetts received certificates of recognition.

The students were selected by members of the physical education department. Sandra Lunt, varsity field hockey coach, and Louise Rozzi, physical education teacher, attended the ceremonies.

Ms. Clark, a junior, has played varsity field hockey and winter and spring track (hurdles and relay) for the past three years.

Ms. Littrean, a senior and captain of the winter track team, does the shot put and plays volleyball.

Ms. Clark is the daughter of Jared and Margery Clark of Andover. Ms. Littrean is a resident of Andover's ABC House.

Organizational softball meetings to be held

The Andover Men's Softball League and the Andover Coed Softball League will hold an organizational meeting Tuesday, March 5, in Town Hall on Bartlet Street. The men's league will meet at 6:30 p.m. while the coed league will meet at 7:45 p.m.

All teams interested in participating in the league must have a representative at the meeting. For further information, call 470-3517.

as NDA won, 73-25, and midway through the schedule scored 30 points and pulled down 14 rebounds in the rematch won by the Lancers, 81-42.

Those are normal nights for the six-foot standout.

The only time she was held below double figures this year was in the Catholic Tournament championship game against Fontbonne Academy (15-5 record). She managed just one field goal and eight total points in a game won by NDA 50-49 on a last-second steal and basket by Julie Hunt.

Ironically, before the 50-point game Liz's career high was 34 two years ago against Fontbonne.

"Fontbonne did an excellent defensive job against her," admitted O'Brien. "They double-teamed her and denied her the ball. She's got to expect that kind of treatment more and more down the road."

Chances are she'll find a way to combat the extra attention. Ms. Davies doesn't mind mixing it up, and sometimes gets a little too energetic.

"She's a tough kid who'll play physical when necessary," said O'Brien. "She can dish it out as well as take it underneath, and isn't afraid to retaliate when kids are hanging all over her."

Liz also averages over 15 rebounds per game.

Although Fontbonne kept her well below her scoring average, she pulled down 21 rebounds in that game and added 24 in the regular season finale against Westford.

"She's really the only big player I've had here," noted Coach O'Brien. "If we ever lose her (injury, foul trouble) we'll be in serious trouble. Everything in our game plan revolves around Liz."

When she gets a Larry Bird-like "triple double," the three big stats are usually points, rebounds and steals.

"We scrimmaged (Division 1 tourney team) Chelmsford the other day, getting ready for the tournament, and Liz had 11 steals," said O'Brien. "I wouldn't call her especially quick, but she has excellent anticipation."

She's not quick, but is she fast?
"She runs with a different kind of gait, but nine times out of 10 she's there for the followup shot on the fast break. She gets up and down the court well."

"Liz scores the majority of her points inside," added O'Brien. "But she can shoot from outside, too. She doesn't like to take that shot, but she hits from the elbow consistently."

Davies is also a deadly free throw shooter, averaging almost 80 per cent accuracy from the line.

And basketball is not Ms. Davies only sport.

She is a league All-Star in volleyball as well, and competes on the NDA spring track team as a javelin and discus thrower.

It should be interesting to see what colleges come calling next year, be it for basketball or volleyball.

For now, it's a safe bet Andover's Liz Davies would be more than satisfied with a late Division 3 hoop championship.

Board triples parking fees Others hiked, too

By Don Staruk

If you thought it was worth the five bucks to park all afternoon on Main Street and just pay the $5 ticket, check your bankbook. The ticket will be $15 starting April 1.

The Board of Selectmen Monday night increased several fees for town services to reduce the costs of providing those services and to raise revenues.

Buzz Stapczynski, town manager, also suggested the board consider instituting a trash fee in which residents would pay 25 cents per trash bag and only town bags would be picked up. This would be more as an incentive to recycle rather than a revenue source, according to the town manager.

Board members had not pursued a plan to charge for trash collection since getting a number of negative calls and letters after suggesting it a few weeks ago. They did not pursue it Monday night either.

"Probably that brought in more phone calls and more letters than anything I can remember in 11 years," Selectman Gerald Silverman said Monday. "As far as I'm concerned that's a dead issue for 1992."

Parking fines

Group A parking fines were increased from $5 to $15 effective April 1. These include meter violations, not parking within marked spaces, parking in restricted areas, parking facing the wrong direction and parking in bus or taxi stands.

Group B fines went from $15 to $25. These include fire hydrant and fire lane violations, parking on a crosswalk, parking in or near an intersection and double parking.

Recreation Park

The new Recreation Park fees for residents are: groups under 50 people with no liquor permit, increased from $35 to $50; groups with more than 50 people or any size with a liquor permit, from $125 to $150; and businesses or fund raisers, from $200 to $225.

The fees for non-residents are: non-profit groups, up from $175 to $225; businesses of fund raisers, up from $275 to $325.

If lights are used it's $10 extra.

Town fields

Rental fees for town fields were increased. Charges for residents are for non-profit groups, up from $25 to $30; business, up from $40 to $50; youth leagues, from $2.50 to $4; and for profit groups the fee was set at $75.

Non-resident fees went from a flat $70 to $75 for non-profit groups and $100 for non-resident business groups.

Burial fees

Spring Grove Cemetery fee increases are: Purchase of a grave lot, up from $280 to $360; adult burial, up from $120 to $350; child burial, $60 to $175; infant burial, $30 to $100; cremated remains, $40 to $100; surcharge for Saturday burial, from $90 to $225; surcharge for Saturday burial of cremated remains, from $30 to $70; surcharge for late afternoon burial, set at $120 and disinterment, from $250 to $500.

Ambulance fees

Basic ambulance fees were set at $140, oxygen use at $30 and mileage charge at $7.50 per mile.

Boys' basketball battles Somerville on court as regular season comes to a close

By Rick Harrison

You just kept waiting for the Andover High boys' varsity basketball team to snatch last week's regular season finale away from visiting Somerville.

The Golden Warriors never led in the game, but never trailed by more than eight points. It was tied seven times, and every time the Highlanders appeared ready to put it away the Warriors battled back.

In the end, however, Somerville held on for a 69-68 victory to complete a sweep of the new rivals' home-and-home non-league series. The Greater-Boston League member also won the season opener for both, 76-72 in overtime.

The Highlanders had a little more at stake than AHS in this one, needing a victory to qualify for the Eastern Mass. Division 1 Tournament.

Coach Dave Fazio's crew had already clinched its berth in the post-season party, and were playing basically for a higher seed.

Andover finished the campaign with a 13-7 overall record, while Somerville checked out at 12-8. Both began play in the tournament earlier this week.

Early lead

Somerville jumped out to a quick 6-0 lead at the Dunn Gymnasium, as the coaches from practically every other Division 1 North Tournament qualifier looked on with interest from the bleachers.

A pair of Sean Ryan three-point bombs brought AHS back to its first tie, 12-12, five minutes into the contest.

But the Highlanders, with stand-out guard Bill Heron and Matt Ardolino leading the way, built the lead back to 25-17 before Matt Perry buried a pair of three's.

The half ended with Somerville holding a tenuous 37-35 advantage. Perry had 13 points, Ryan nine, point-guard Joe Iarrobino five, Kevin Ring four and Brett Hammond four points for Andover.

Heron had 12 points, Ardolino 10 and Dan Murnane, a nephew of AHS hockey Coach Mike Murnane, five for Somerville in the first 16 minutes.

The visitors stretched the lead to eight early in the second half, and maintained a five to eight point edge until Sean Ryan's fifth three-pointer of the night and 29th this season cut the deficit to 65-61 with 3:25 to play.

Perry swished two free throws after a steal to make it 65-63 at the 2:04 mark, but Murnane converted the rebound of a missed Chris Walsh free throw 17 seconds later.

Iarrobino's crisp pass to Ryan resulted in a three-point play (lay-up, free throw) to make it 67-66 with 1:24 remaining.

Ardolino followed up his own miss for the final Somerville points at 1:08.

The Warriors turned the ball over

(bad pass) 20 seconds later, but stayed alive when Somerville missed three free throws over the next 20 seconds.

Brett Hammond drove the lane to make it 69-68 with six seconds left, and a quick foul put the Highlanders at the line with 0:04 to play.

Again the foul shot was missed. Mike Pettoruto came down with the rebound, but his desperation full court heave at the buzzer hit the rafters.

Scoring

Matt Perry, who scored 281 points last year, upped his 1990-91 production to 399 with 21 in this game. Included were four three-pointers to boost his school and MVC-record total to 60 for the season.

Ryan added 20 points as the only other Andover player in doubles.

Kevin Ring, who fouled out with 1:50 to play, had eight points, Iarrobino seven, Hammond six, Chris Shea two, Jeff Hurley two and Mike Pettoruto two.

Heron netted 19 points, Ardolino 18 and Murnane 15 for Somerville.

Andover held a 26-21 edge in field goals, but the Highlanders spent the evening at the free throw line and finished with a pivotal 24-7 edge despite their stretch-run problems.

For the game Somerville was 24 for-33 at the line and AHS just 7-for-9.

Hoopsters begin tourney play

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High boys' and girls' basketball teams began their quests for Eastern Mass. Division 1 North Sectional championships earlier this week as the annual single elimination MIAA Tournament opened with first round action.

Coach George Sullivan's Lady Warriors faced an all-too-familiar opponent last Tuesday night, tapping off against Methuen High at the Rangers' fieldhouse.

Andover, seeded 12th and last in its division, entered with a 12-8 record that included only two victories in its final eight games after a 10-2 start.

Methuen, the No. 5 seed, was 15-5 and champion of the Merrimack Valley Conference Small School Division.

The teams met twice during the regular season, Methuen winning both times by 13 point margins. The Rangers beat AHS 54-41 in the opening round of the Greater Lawrence Christmas Festival, and again 61-51 in the regular season finale for both schools.

The winner of the Andover-Methuen game returns to action tomorrow night with a quarterfinal round contest at West Roxbury High.

West Roxbury, seeded fourth, drew a first round bye and enters with a 15-2 record. Gametime is 7 p.m.

If Andover wins twice the likely semifinal round opponent, with game time and site to be announced, is undefeated, top-seeded Middlesex League champion Burlington (20-0).

Andover boys

Coach Dave Fazio's Golden Warriors opened play last night against a new opponent, Northeastern Conference member Lynn English.

Andover, making its 29th tourney appearance in the last 32 years, finished 13-7 and earned the 10th seed as Merrimack Valley Conference Large School runner-up.

Host team Lynn English, one of three Lynn high schools playing in the tourney (Lynn Classical and Lynn Tech qualified in Division 3), was seeded No. 7 with a 14-6 record.

If AHS won it will next face a familiar opponent, No. 2 seed Lawrence High, which drew a first-round bye and will host the quarterfinal round fray this Saturday night at 7 p.m.

The Lancers are 19-1 and own a pair of regular-season December victories over Andover, 73-64 in MVC play and a come-from-behind 63-60 triumph in the semifinals of the Greater-Lawrence Christmas Tournament.

Should Andover advance to the semifinals, whose game time and site is TBA, the likely opponent is defending champ Everett High.

The third-seeded Crimson Tide, 17-2 overall, bounced the Warriors from last year's tourney 88-60 after AHS had ousted

Icemen begin preliminary-round tournament play tonight

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High varsity hockey team opens play in the Eastern Mass. Division 2 Tournament tonight, facing defending division champ Arlington Catholic in a preliminary round game at Merrimack College.

The opening faceoff is at 6 p.m.

The Golden Warriors, whose 10-6-1 record sets a single-season mark for victories, are making just the third tourney appearance in the 22-year history of the program.

AHS will be a decided underdog against the AC Cougars, who compete in the Catholic Central League against the likes of eight-time state champ Matignon, Austin Prep and Archbishop Williams.

At 11-6-1 Coach Dan Shine's Arlington Catholic crew is not as strong as last year's title team, but is still among the four or five teams given the best shot to go all the way.

Andover will be led into battle by Merrimack Valley Conference Small School Division scoring champ Sean Darwin (21-23-44 points), linemate Mike Murnane (19-19-38), sophomore defenseman Justin Hesenius and

Darwin was named a first-team All-Conference player last week, while Murnane was selected for the second team and Hesenius for honorable mention.

Other top forwards include Dan Feeley, Chris Cashman, Chris Pothier and Greg Afarian, while Bobby Sheehan and the freshman duo of Paul Allard and Dan Trede have played well defensively.

Junior Todd Allard should be available to play on defense, as he comes back sooner than expected from an ankle injury.

AHS went just 3-6-4 in league play but posted a perfect 7-0-0 non-league mark to qualify under the 60 per cent rule.

Should Andover win tonight the tourney trail doesn't get any smoother. Third-seeded Tewksbury, the seven-time reigning MVHL Small School champ (14-2-3), awaits tonight's survivor for a first-round game Saturday at Merrimack.

Tewksbury has already beaten the Warriors twice this season, 5-1 and 5-2.

Sean Darwin named to All-Conference team

By Rick Harrison

Andover High hockey player Sean Darwin has been named to the first-team Merrimack Valley League All-Conference squad, the first AHS athlete to make first team in many years.

Darwin, a senior center/right wing, was one of just nine players so honored from the 10 league teams.

The All-Conference team, the best of the best, includes five forwards, three defensemen and one goaltender.

Darwin's senior linemate, Mike Murnane, was named to the second team and sophomore defenseman Justin Hesenius earned honorable mention status.

Darwin this year became the first Andover player to lead the MVHL in scoring, winning the Small School title and finishing second overall with 21 goals and 23 assists for 44 points.

An MVC All-Star in golf as well, Darwin has established Andover High hockey team records in goals for a season and career, career assists and career points.

Large School champ Billerica dominated the All-Conference team with four selections, forwards Mike Glavine and Mike McGaffigan along with defensemen Tom Gualtieri and Paul Cotta.

Brian Dinges of Haverhill and Joe Centrella of Tewksbury are the other forwards, Bob Voner of Wilmington the third defenseman, and Greg Biron of Dracut the All-Conference goaltender.

Centrella was named league MVP, Mark Yetman of Chelmsford (who recently underwent brain surgery) earned the Sportsmanship Award, and Methuen High's Joe Robillard the Fred C. Carpenito Memorial Award as Coach-of-the-Year.

The Golden Warrior trio of Darwin, Murnane and Hesenius all helped the MVHL Small School All-Stars bury the Cape Ann League 'Stars' 11-1 in their inaugural Inter-Conference All-Star Game last week at Billerica High.

AHS gymnasts and runners to compete in meets

By Rick Harrison

Several high-quality athletes from Andover High will participate in State and New England level meets in their particular sports this Saturday.

The school's top two girl gymnasts, juniors Kasie Kearins and Tania Pierce, will journey to Algonquin Regional in Northboro Saturday night to participate in the annual State Individual Championships.

Despite the fact both were hampered by ankle injuries over the second half of the season, Pierce qualified to compete in three events and Kearins in one.

State qualifiers are chosen by their average score per meet in each event, with the top 45 (and ties) selected and seeded.

Ms. Kearins is seeded 15th on the uneven bars with an average score of 8.3875 this season.

Ms. Pierce is seeded 36th on balance beam with an 8.275 average score, 39th in vaulting at 8.5125 and 45th on bars with an 8.15.

Track Easterns

The Andover High girls' varsity track team has two individuals and a relay team poised to compete in the 12th annual Girls' Eastern States Interscholastic Invitational Track and Field

Meet this Saturday at Harvard University's Gordon Cage.

Joining the elite field in the Easterns, which attract top performers from all over the East Coast, will be junior sprinter Jill Ippolito, junior hurdler Holly Clark and the 4x200 relay team of Ippolito, junior Layne Whitley, junior Nicole Angelos and senior captain Maureen Maginnis.

Ippolito qualified by posting one of the 36 best times on the East Coast in the 60 yard dash, while Clark has one of the season's 36 low clockings in the 60-yard hurdles.

Serving as an alternate on the relay squad will be sophomore Cara O'Hanley, who will step in should any of the original four members be unable to attend or compete.

The following Saturday, March 9, Jill Ippolito and Jason McCue are qualified to compete in the annual New England Interscholastic Championships at Brown University in Providence, R.I.

The pair earned their spots with strong performers at the All-State Meet two weeks ago.

As reported in last week's Townsmen, Ippolito was second in the girls' 55-meter dash and McCue sixth in the 55-meter (60-yard) hurdles.

AHS swimmers participate in championship meet

The Andover High men's varsity swim team participated in the 1991 Massachusetts swimming and diving championships last weekend at Springfield College.

Sophomore Matt Liberty was fifth in the state in the 500-yard freestyle and ninth in the 200-yard individual medley. The 400-yard freestyle relay team of Geoff Schaake, Matt Jennings, Liberty and Brian Mayberry was alternate in the event.

Chris DeMartino, co-captain Sean Herlihy and Adam Robb also competed in the state championship.

Persistent defense helps Freshman b'ball team ends season with 10-5 record

By Rick Harrison

Halfway through the recently-completed Andover freshman girls' basketball season, after a particularly frustrating 28-27 overtime loss to Haverhill, Coaches Jay Darrin, Dave Gangi and Steve Tisbert gathered the troops for a skull session.

An honest evaluation of the situation revealed that the young Warriors didn't have any great shooters, so games would have to be won by playing tenacious defense.

"We started the season with only two kids that had played anything beyond pick-up basketball," explained Coach Darrin. "We were ragged for the first few games, and pleased to have a 5-5 record after 10 games."

"But after the loss to Haverhill we had the team meeting, and things just took off from there. Greater Lawrence was the next team on our schedule and, although they weren't very strong, our girls really came out fired up."

"We won that game, 41-13, and then closed the season with four more victories for a five-game win streak," added Darrin.

The final record of 10-5 included early victories over Haverhill (28-17), Lawrence (38-32), Billerica (33-26), Chelmsford (35-24) and non-league Phillips Academy (28-10). The season ending five-game streak brought consecutive wins over Greater Lawrence, Dracut (29-22), Billerica (35-20), Tewksbury (30-27) and Chelmsford (34-23).

The triumph over Tewksbury was the biggest of the season because the Redgals had just one prior loss, and were locked in a two-way battle with undefeated Lowell for the Merrimack Valley Conference championship.

The five losses were to Lowell (37-27), Wilmington (20-19), Methuen (35-17), Haverhill in overtime and non-league North Andover (42-23), so Andover was actually two one-point defeats from a 12-3 record.

Point-guard and tri-captain Rachel Buonopane led the 13-girl squad in scoring with 139 points, including a single-game season-high 18 in the 35-24 victory over Chelmsford.

Guard Susan Hoffman was the second leading scorer with 61 points, while forward Jessica Tobin had 57 points and was runner-up in rebounding with 112 caroms.

Center Carrie Green was chairwoman of the boards with 133 rebounds, and Mandy Wilson pulled down 63 rebounds.

Additional guards were Amy Baggeroer, who led the team in field goal percentage with a .452 mark, Chrissy Blais, Laura Cavicchi, tri-captain Andrea Marino and tri-captain Angela Roux.

Other forwards were Chrissy Donovan, Mindy Fox and Robin LaPointe.

"It turned out to be a pretty balanced team," said Coach Darrin. "We had a lot of different girls rise to the occasion in certain games."

Other important team members were student-manager Erica Campbell and timer-scorekeeper Megan Kelly.

This was Jay Darrin's eighth season as the Andover girls' frosh coach.

In the spring he and Dave Gangi switch roles as assistant and head coach respectively of the girls' freshman softball team.

Steve Tisbert, a former teacher coach at West Middle, is a volunteer assistant with the basketball team.

FinCom: Cut town employee raises increases and the budget cuts causing the layoffs of town and school employees could not be ignored by the Finance Committee."

FinCom members reported that, in many of their own businesses, across-the-board cost-of-living increases were a thing of the past and have been replaced by freezes, wage cuts and layoffs, according to Ms. Marden.

Town labor contracts differ, but all have automatic annual cost-of-living increases in addition to increases earned for years of service or educational incentives. A 5 percent cost-of-living increase can result in an individual employee receiving a 7 or 8 percent raise, according to Ms. Marden.

"Under the teachers' contract, for example, the budget for teacher salaries for Fiscal Year 1992 must increase 9.6 percent in order to continue to pay all current teachers next year, although their contract provides for a 6 percent cost-of-living increase.

"Similarly, regular wages for the fire department would have to increase 8.7 percent to employ the same individuals next year as are included in this year's budget. Their cost-of-living increase for fiscal '92 is 5 percent."

The FinCom does not have similar figures available for the police department or Department of Public Works because they are more complicated and the patrol people don't have a contract. But the average cost-of-living raise is at least 5 percent for every budget, Ms. Marden said.

"These are just two examples. The Finance Committee wants it clearly understood that labor costs are a problem for all departments," she said.

DPW would talk

Jim Misenti, Department of Public Works union president, said his roughly 60 members are aware of the proposed raise cuts and are willing to discuss them, but he said union members are waiting for specifics.

"We have not heard anything official. They want us to re-negotiate, but they have not told us what would be on the table. We'll have to wait and see what they offer us. They're supposed to give us some proposals," Mr. Misenti said Tuesday.

The DPW employees are scheduled

'We looked at it from the standpoint of the turtle and the hare. Teachers never get flashy increases, but they are regular.'

Stephen Jankauskas, teacher at South Elementary School

for a 5 percent cost-of-living increase July 1. Those with long-term service get an additional 2 percent after five years, 2.5 percent after 10 years, 3 percent after 15 years and 3.5 percent after 20 years.

Mr. Misenti was not sure what members would be willing to give up.

"I think it would depend on what they are going to offer us. If we had to give something back, we'd definitely want job security."

The employees wouldn't want to give something up, then six months later have five guys laid off, he said.

"All I can say is that we are willing to talk with them because we know times are tough. If the town is willing to give us some things, we will too."

The teachers

Stephen Jankauskas, a teacher at South Elementary School and a former member of the bargaining team that settled the current teachers' contract, said he personally would vote against cuts in raises.

"I would vote 'no,' but I'm one person," Mr. Jankauskas said.

Mr. Jankauskas is still a union building representative but is no longer a member of the bargaining team.

"I know that a bargaining team has been put together. The School Committee has talked, in generalities, about approaching the union and re-opening bargaining," he said.

"I'd certainly be willing to listen to what they have to say."

But the provisions in the third year of the contract, next year, were what settled the agreement, he said. Those provisions included a graduated raise over three years, 7 percent next year, totaling 18.5 percent.

"We looked at it from the standpoint of the turtle and the hare. Teachers never get flashy increases, but they are regular," Mr. Jankauskas said.

Business people who normally have the opportunity to get big raises — one example he cited was 18 percent — are now suffering, according to Mr. Jankauskas. But when the economy turns around, they will be back getting flashy raises and teachers will still be stuck with cost-of-living hikes. Teachers who want to make a career of it have to stick by the raises, he said.

"Whatever is said to the bargaining team, I'm sure the bargaining team will respond with some things. I couldn't predict (what). You asked me what my vote would be. My vote would be, 'no.' Would I listen to what they came back with? Certainly I would listen."

Other options

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski submitted revised public safety budget recommendations to the selectmen Monday night based on a proposed $198,000 revenue savings from re-negotiated contracts and fee hikes.

Mr. Stapczynski has been re-negotiating parts of the police lieutenant and sergeant contracts and has reached some agreement with at least the lieutenants on saving money on mandatory replacements when an officer is out sick or for any other reason. Those savings could amount to $40,000 and could save the position of a part-time clerk and two vehicles.

Another $62,000 might be saved from the police compensation fund, depending on the success of negotiations, which could mean two of the five patrol-person jobs slated for layoffs could be saved.

Parking ticket fine increases approved Monday night, along with proposed parking meter increases, could raise another $24,000 to save the job of the meter-person position.

In the fire department, two firefighter positions could be saved with $65,500 saved from the street-light account, but this proposal brought some resistance from Selectman Gerald Silverman.

Street lights are one form of public safety and police and fire are another.

Cutting out street lights would not help solve the overall public safety problem, Mr. Silverman said.

Another $6,500 from increased ambulance fees, also approved Monday night, could save a part-time clerk in the fire department.

No money

"For the first time, Andover has fewer dollars available for spending next year than this year, in spite of a projected 3.8 percent increase in the property tax rate," Ms. Marden said Monday night.

"There are not enough dollars to continue to fund all the services Andover residents have grown accustomed to. There are not enough dollars to both continue to employ all the same people and meet our contractual obligations for automatic cost-of-living increases. There are not enough dollars to provide a reasonable level of maintenance for our public buildings and roads. This shortage of revenues is not a one-year problem. Andover must restructure to reduce spending, bring wage and salary increases under control, and eliminate non-essential services."

Questions, questions, questions

In the document that Ms. Marden delivered to the selectmen Monday, the Finance Committee:

- Questioned the size of the staff in Community Development and Planning in light of reduced building activity;

- Agreed that most other general government departments could not function effectively with fewer employees;

- Recommended reorganization in police and fire departments, which, the FinCom said, "appear top heavy, too many officers for the numbers of patrolmen and firefighters."

- Was alarmed by a lack of funding for road maintenance;

- Questioned the cost effectiveness of using town employees for Municipal Maintenance rather than contracting for services, especially for vehicle maintenance.

Too many cuts have been made in materials, supplies and contracted maintenance services, which may result in higher costs in the long term, the FinCom said.

Town Meeting.

"With the pros and cons being weighed, we feel confident that article will be passed at Town Meeting," Mr. Salazar told the board.

While the school override request was much discussed and expected, a request for a $300,000 override for road maintenance came at the last minute of Monday's meeting and seemed to catch board members, and others at the meeting, off guard.

The $300,000 proposal, as put on the ballot and if passed at Town Meeting, would be a "capital-expenditure exclusion," which means it would be a one-time tax hike for next year and would not have a permanent effect on the tax base. It would increase the tax rate by 11 or 12 cents.

But that wasn't the way it was first proposed.

Selectman William Downs casually tossed out the idea of an override for road maintenance just before the board was about to close the warrant and adjourn the meeting Monday night. He proposed the idea and moved the question not as a debt-exclusion override, but as one that would permanently increase the tax base. The perpetual $300,000 increase, if approved, would not have been dedicated to road maintenance after next year.

During discussion, members of the audience expressed dismay at the proposal, which they claimed was only a token of what is really needed for the roads.

"We ought to have a capital improvement plan" before piecemealing it, said Christine Holmes, of 14 Whispering Pines Lane, a candidate for the Board of Selectmen. "I would absolutely be against it."

Ms. Holmes suggested the town go for a debt exclusion override after a capital improvement plan had been instituted.

"Two words - not enough," said Michael Fishman, of Washington Park.

Joanne Marden, Finance Committee chairwoman, appeared to be completely unprepared for the override proposal and told board members that her committee has been recommending a capital improvement plan all along.

What we need is an overall road plan with a plan to fund it," Mrs. Marden said.

Mr. Silverman said a 10-year plan exists, but that each year there is no money to fund it.

Bob McQuade, Public Works director, has had a 10-year road improvement plan that requires the town to spend $1 million a year. But the town has fallen so far behind that it would now take $1.5 million for 10 years to catch up, board members said Monday night.

Fred Stott, FinCom member, told selectmen that a 10-year capital plan is in place, but that it is not a complete capital improvement plan. The town manager has set a goal of instituting a capital improvement program for next year, Mr. Stott said.

Ms. Holmes said the new town manager and selectmen should be given a chance to institute that plan before asking for overrides for it.

"I would really urge you not to override the operating budget for this kind of outlay," she said.

Susan O'Neill, of 11 Argyle St., who is running for a position on the board, suggested going along with Ms. Holmes' debt-exclusion suggestion, but for the $300,000 just for this year. That would get the town by until the town manager has a chance to get an overall plan up and running next year, she said, and would give the DPW money to at least fill some potholes.

Mr. Downs agreed that $300,000 wasn't going to solve all the problems, but that it was something for the DPW to work with. But the perpetual hike would raise the levy limit to increase the available funds in the future, he said.

Board Chairman James Barenboim and Selectman Gail Ralston voted against his motion with only Selectman Gerald Silverman supporting Mr. Downs. Selectman Charles Wesson was not at Monday's meeting, and the tie vote shot down Mr. Downs' proposal.

Then, as it appeared the meeting was about to adjourn, Mr. Silverman threw another proposal on the table, again for the $300,000 for road maintenance, but this time as the one-time debt exclusion. It passed 3-1 with Mr. Downs opposing it.

Both overrides need a majority vote at town meeting to move on to a special election ballot.

Calculating the cost of an override of Prop. 2 1/2

Assumptions:

1. No change in Proposition 2 1/2 law.
2. Revenue estimates in town manager's budget.
3. Adoption of manager's budget by Town Meeting.
4. Total valuation of town: $3,115,574,000.
5. No change in classification.

Residential Property Value	FY91 Tax bill	FY92 no override	Additional Increase $1.5 Override	Additional Increase $300,000 Override
$100,000	$1,142	$1,186	$44	$9
$200,000	$2,284	$2,372	$88	$18
$300,000	$3,426	$3,558	$132	$27
$400,000	$4,568	$4,744	$176	$36

For $238,000 residential property:
$105 for school override
$21 for $300,000 override

FinCom taken to task for comments on pay raises

By Lisa Boudreau

School Committee members blasted Joanne Marden of the Finance Committee Tuesday night for suggesting town workers should forgo their cost-of-living wage increase to reduce layoffs. Mrs. Marden made her comments the night before to the Board of Selectmen.

Richard Hubbell of the School Committee called Mrs. Marden's remarks "callous," and committee Chairman Andres Salazar said he was disappointed with her remarks because they weren't based on fact.

"These difficult times call for leadership from the Finance Committee," Mr. Salazar said. "I'm disappointed the Finance Committee would advocate cuts based on unrealistic facts."

Mr. Salazar added that schools are labor intensive and that the yearly increase in the teachers' three-year contract averages out to less per year than their past two contracts.

Mr. Hubbell said the Finance Committee's suggestions were unconstructive and gave a false impression by misquoting the budgets presented by various town departments.

"The Finance Committee serves no useful purpose by their cursory efforts at solving the problems and unfair characterization of the problem as solely the unions' fault," said Mr. Hubbell.

School Committeeman Chris Outwin said FinCom should be looking at the long-term repercussions of continued cuts in town and school budgets.

Susan Poore was the only School Committee member who said she wasn't offended by the Finance Committee stand. Mrs. Poore is also the only committee member who has come out against an override of Proposition 2 1/2.

Holiday committee meets Wednesday

The next meeting of the town's Mount Rushmore Flag, patriotic holiday committee will be held Wednesday, March 6, at 7 p.m.

The committee will meet in the third-floor staff conference room in town offices on Bartlett Street, said John J. Lewis, committee secretary.

Looking at before- and after-school day care

either have to be closed or reorganized. Closing the school would save the system $300,000, according to school officials.

The subcommittee on instruction is currently investigating and gathering public input into alternatives focused on turning Shawsheen into a kindergarten through second grade school and raising money though offering day care at the school.

"My first choice would be to keep Shawsheen School just the way it is," said Madhu Sridhar, 75 Rattlesnake Hill Road.

"We don't have the luxury to do that," said Dr. McQuillan.

"What we are trying to do is come up with the most effective plan and trying to keep the school from going under," he said.

The group's second choice was to let a private group such as Shawsheen Extended Day expand and take over the day-care program if Shawsheen has to be reorganized and extra money is needed to offset the school's expenses. SHED currently offers morning and afternoon half-day care for kindergarten-age children.

"I love Shawsheen," said Margaret Hagopian, 1 Roulston Circle, whose daughter attended Shawsheen kindergarten last year.

"It was a wonderful way for my daughter to start her educational career," she said.

Mrs. Hagopian's suggestion was to offer before- and after-school care at all the schools to raise enough money to offset the costs of keeping the Shawsheen kindergarten configuration.

Mr. Salazar said the committee doesn't believe it's a good idea to change the school system so rapidly.

"We want to try out a day-care program at one school first," Mr. Salazar said.

The subcommittee discussed five reconfiguration options outlined by the superintendent. In all but the last alternative, kindergarten classes would move back to neighborhood schools and a day-care program would be created at the school.

Alternative # 1

In alternative #1, Shawsheen School would become a kindergarten through grade 2 satellite of West Elementary. A certain number of seats would be set aside for South Elementary School students whose parents chose to enroll them there. A total of 250 children in grades K-2 could be housed in the building.

This plan would open up five classrooms at West Elementary. A majority of the K-2 children at Shawsheen from the West district could walk to Shawsheen, which would save busing costs.

Money could be generated by charging parents for busing children from the Shawsheen School day-care program in the morning to their neighborhood school and back to Shawsheen after school ends.

Four classrooms accommodating 20 children each would be targeted for day care.

If each of the 80 children were charged $3 per hour, the administration believes it could generate $65,000 once expenses were deducted. The total could increase if the school charged more, if there were more day-care slots opened up and transportation costs were offset in some manner.

The administration estimates it would cost $95,000 annually to run alternative #1 configuration of Shawsheen School.

This plan provides only a short-term solution to overcrowding at South Elementary and it is believed redistricting will be necessary for the 1992-1993 school year.

Alternative # 2

The second alternative is the same as alternative # 1, except that Shawsheen School would become a "magnet" K-2 school where parents could elect to send their children. These students would be guaranteed day care if they chose it.

The day-care programs and transportation fees would remain the same as in the first alternative. But alleviating overcrowding at West and South elementary schools are not guaranteed. Under the optional enrollment plan, a lottery might be instituted to ensure regular enrollment from each of the four elementary schools.

Alternative #2 doesn't bring in any more money than alternative #1.

Alternative # 3

The third plan is exactly the same as alternative #1, except that a private group such as SHED would take over the responsibility of running the before and after care programs.

It would cost the administration as much money as the first two proposals. Contracting out the day-care program would bring in approximately $20,000 less than if the school department ran the program.

Alternative # 4

This is exactly the same as alternative #2 except that a private group such as SHED would take over the responsibility of running the before-and after-care programs. It would cost the administration as much money as the first three proposals to run Shawsheen under alternative #4. Contracting out the day-care program would bring in approximately $20,000 less than if the school department ran the program.

Alternative # 5

This plan reorganizes Shawsheen as a K-5 neighborhood school. This idea was researched, but generally dismissed because of the cost.

At least $75,000 would have to be spent to renovate the building and bring it up to code for older children and add a cafeteria. The building is currently designed for pre-school children.

Subcommittee members are looking for citizens to serve on it. The next meeting will be 7:30, tonight, Thursday, at the school administration building on Whittier Court.

The subcommittee is also considering the following alternatives:

- Add kindergarten and day care to the existing Shawsheen configuration to raise money.

- Re-organize Shawsheen as a kindergarten school for just South Elementary students.

- Increase the number of day care slots in any or all proposals to raise more money.

- Close Shawsheen School, return kindergarteners to neighborhood schools and lease the building to a private party such as a day-care provider.
